J of 63 AD

Joliet Township High School
Joliet, Illinois

Newsfoto Publishing Company · San Angelo, Texas · 1963

Growth of the individual is brought about by those influences which make up his environment. With these instruments exerting constant effect on our lives, we develop mentally, emotionally, spiritually, and physically.

As we enter our teen years, we begin to take more cognizance of the influential elements discerned in this, the J of '63 — the School, the People, and the Experiment of education.

We at Joliet Township High School are concerned with these facets of life development and the results attained through their proper application. To the people who profit from exposure to this routine process, thereby making possible lives which enjoy greater richness, this book is sincerely dedicated.

Miss J Reigns

Amidst Colorful

Pageantry

What began with the selection of the most photogenic young lady in the Joliet Township High School senior class and the "sweetheart" of this, the "J of '63," ended in colorful splendor for Sylvia Lundin, Miss J of 1963, when she was crowned by royalty — in the person of Charlene (Lundberg) Frojd, Miss United States of 1960 — at the midterm "Scholarship Swing." Sylvia's picture was selected from those of the ten Miss J finalists at the left by Erv Kupcinec, nationally famous Chicago Sun-Times columnist and host of television's "Kup's Show." In so becoming Miss J, Miss Sylvia Lundin has epitomized the yearbook editor's hopes of highlighting this annual in the regality befitting such an honor.

The "J of '63" editors' purpose in sponsoring the Miss J Contest started originally with the idea of selecting the girl "pretty as a picture." But when ten lovely finalists were selected by local committees, the same editors couldn't resist splurging, in color, on all ten. The result: this elegant color reproduction of Miss J and the nine other finalists was effected on the stairs leading to the ballroom at D'Amico's 214. The finalists are, first row, left to right, Minnie Wisneski, Karen Kramer, Linda Jones, Jeanette Hicks; second row, Sylvia Lundin, Miss J of 1963, Joan Hynd, Marilyn Sleyko, Avace Gregory; and third row, Sandy Robinson and Rita Wolf.

Miss J receives an affectionate felicitation from her mother after being crowned at the "Scholarship Swing." John Hathway, Sylvia's escort, and Mr. Ernst Lundin, the "sweetheart's" father, anxiously await their turns.

To hold classes on a clover field may sound like a refreshing approach to schooling for the non-educated, but we, who are at least partially "educated," well realize the advantages of an adequately equipped classroom. For, although the assets of the intellect may be imparted on a clover field, the knowledge to use that intellect would be impractical without some sort of training for applying it by means of the modern equipment of our society.

So, before we examine the type of persons who inhabit the halls of Joliet Township High School, let's assess the instruments they will be using during their experiment with education.

What facilities can the School afford its People — from the future artists to the future zoologists to insure a successful outcome in the Experiment? To answer this question is the function of Part One of the J of '63.

T H E S C H O O L

Students idle and chat in front of one of Joliet Township High School's eastern entrances between their classes. At the heralding of the bell, they will probably occupy the facilities of one of the school's many, ample, and typical classrooms. But, in this section of the "J," we will disregard these facilities because of their familiar aspects to all students in order to examine the more atypical, colorful, less-known facets of a JTHS education . . .

Artisans Learn Backstage Brushing Techniques

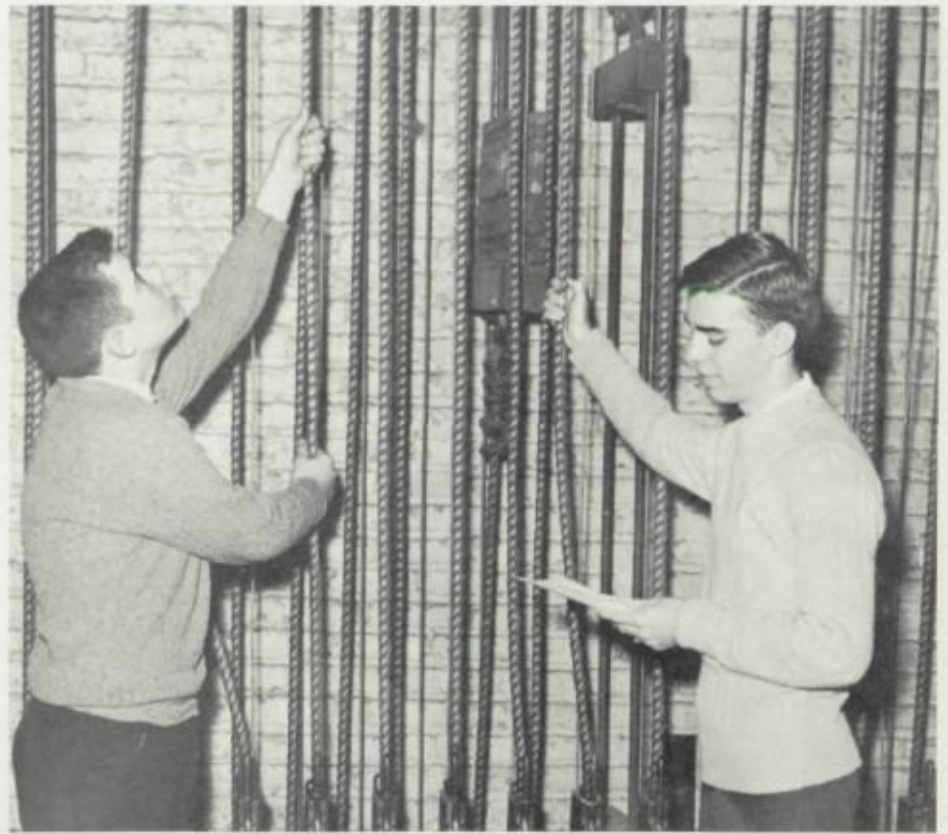

All that most JT students and faculty members see of the activities of the art, dramatics and music departments are the finished products displayed either in the art department window or on stage. Thus, most know little about the preparatory facilities used to "manufacture" the final product.

But this observance does not imply that Joliet Township High School is not well equipped in preparatory paraphernalia. In the three rooms and offices of the art department are crowded all the utensils needed for most any project.

Dramatics and speech equipment includes many school-owned tape recorders and record players, lighting facilities, and a host of necessary backstage implements.

Two "regular" classrooms are outfitted with stage and all play-acting necessities. Here the students are encouraged to learn the fundamentals of acting before venturing to the "big stage" in the auditorium.

The superlative music equipment housed in the large orchestra and band rooms and in the newly redecorated choir rooms can be a significant part of the national musical fame JT students have brought to the school through their musical activities.

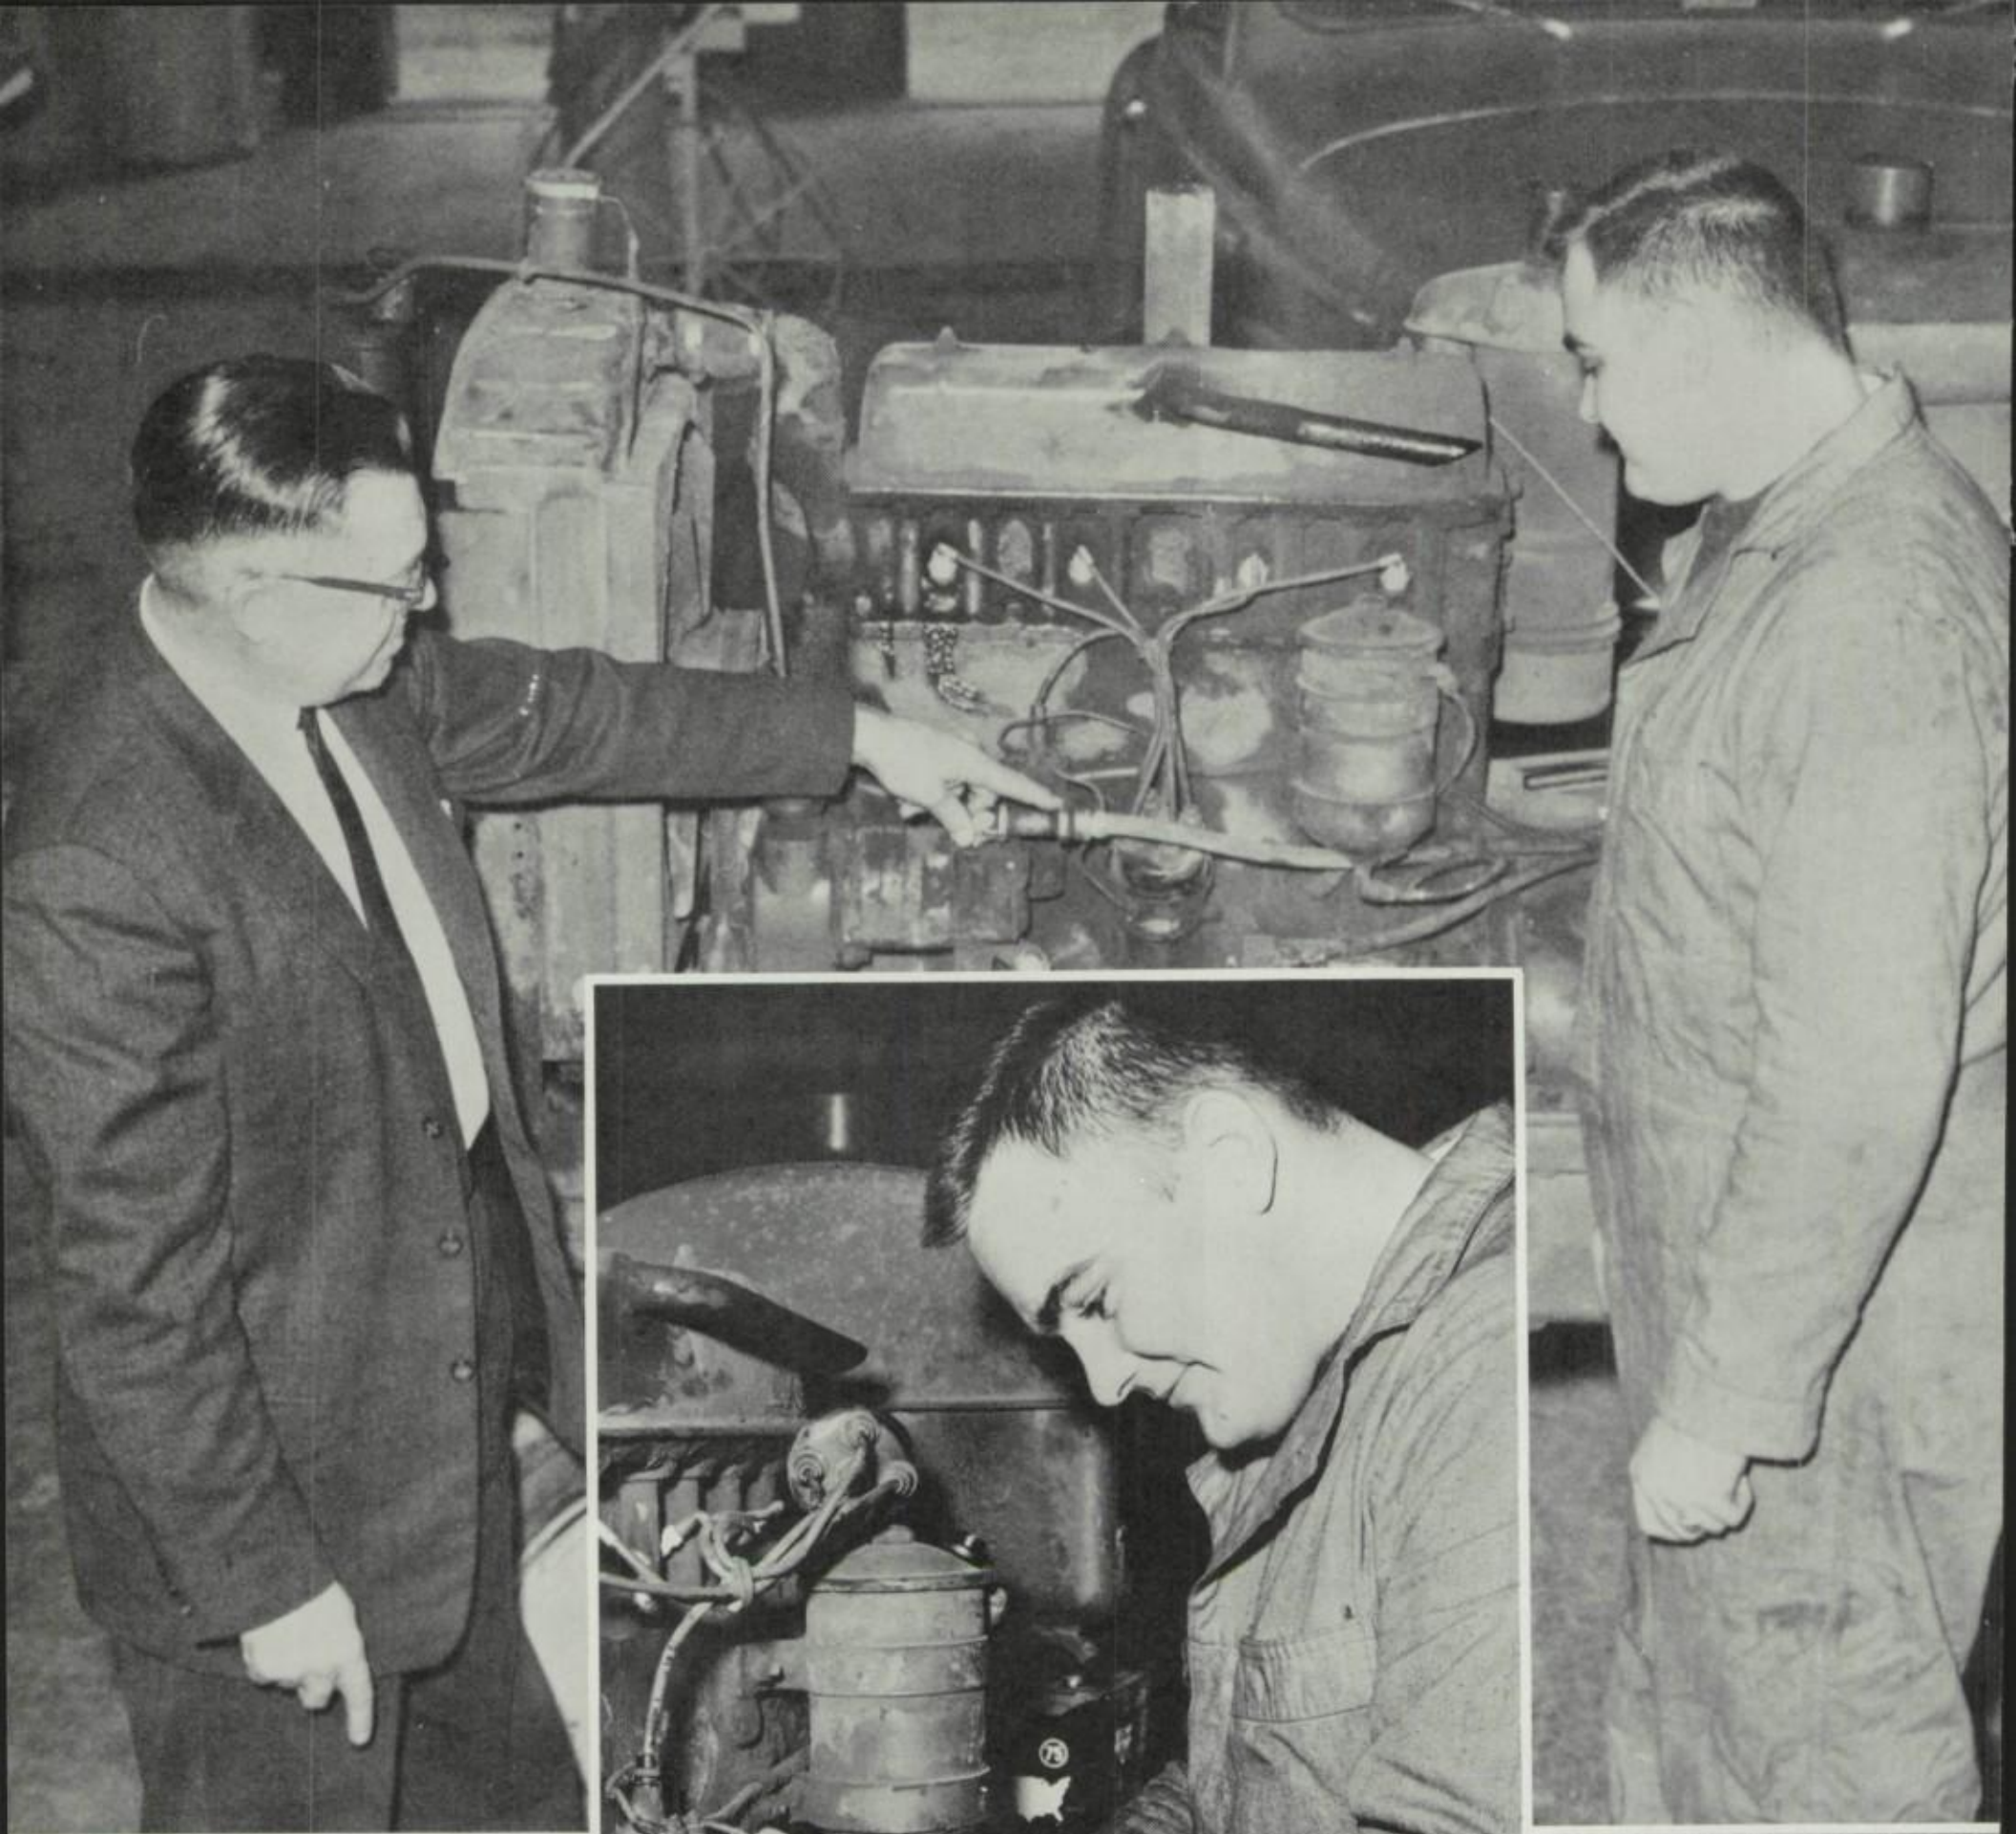

Jeff Davis and Bob Planing practice curtain pulls in the auditorium . . .

Kathy Shaw touches up her painting; Bob Bolz discerns her technique with interest...but Judy Penrod can't quite seem to analyze the approach Kathy uses. This colorful scene emanates from one of the art rooms.

. . . while Karen Lindblad attempts to slide a set from the storeroom as Shirley Nicholson readies to splash more paint on "her" throne. All, of course, is make-believe, but these dramatics students must perfect the backstage routine of their proposed careers in order to understand those onstage.

Modern Implements Indoctrinate Future Laborers

Rick Doyle sets copy for a forthcoming issue of the J-Hi Journal on one of the print shop's four linotype machines.

Diversity is the key to the excellence of facilities offered by the vocational departments of Joliet Township High School. Housed in the two modern vocational units (constructed in 1958) immediately east of the main building are implements of unequaled quality and quantity in any secondary liberal arts institution in Illinois.

The school print shop's four linotypes, six presses and type equipment, the school's electrical apparatus, its many various drill presses, saws, and lathes, its auto and farm mechanics' tools . . . all provide the prospective laborer with the opportunity to familiarize himself with the machines of his future occupation.

But the vocational aspirant's education doesn't end with his training in one of the vocational shops. Through the school he is afforded job opportunities and training in his chosen field — be it the actual harvesting of corn on a local farm or electronics work for a local radio station.

Donald Blatz and John Varmin check circuitry on a class project in the electric shop.

Space Age Gadgets Aid Student Research

The science departments of the School lack nothing with which the budding researchist can explore worlds of the infinite — from the infinitely small, through one of hundreds of precision microscopes, to the infinitely large, through the school observatory's four and one-half-inch refracting telescope.

The laboratory equipment of the biology, chemistry, and physics departments provide a more-than-adequate complement to text book study. For the aspiring astronomer, there is, besides the telescope, a planetarium; future botanists have access to the roof-top greenhouse; coming chemists are completely at home in some of the nation's finest laboratories; and, biologists learn by using incubators, aquariums, and terrariums. Earth science students "aid" their instructor in "finding out about the weather" by making daily reports, while space science understudies utilize geiger counters for radiation research.

But even all these facets of the student-scientist's life at Joliet Township High School are very partial in relationship with all the other space age gadgets he applies to his various, astounding projects — such as those exhibited in the math-science fair held in May.

Under the supervision of Mr. Donald Hopkins, head of the physics department, physics club members erected this Christmas tree—you guessed it—made of clamps, pulleys, spring scales, Bunsen burners, angel hair, and ...practically anything usable from physics labs.

Mr. Douglas Graham makes adjustments on the equatorial mount of the observatory's telescope.

Some of the new demonstration equipment purchased for use in physics labs included this wave machine that illustrates the motion and cycles of waves. Attending the machine is Mr. Roy Hartman, instructor in physics.

Maidens Master Modern Machines for Careers

The best examples of excellence in the facilities available for career training of young women (men, too!) entering the fields of homemaking and business are found in the by-products made with these facilities. For example, the inspired creations colorfully represented at the left are proof of the quality of instruments that their makers utilized while learning and doing in one of several up-to-date, well-implemented JT sewing rooms.

Meanwhile, delectable dishes designed to ensnare (and keep) any unsuspecting male who puts dependence in his stomach in selecting a mate are "fashioned" in home economics rooms which afford ample opportunity for feminine experimentation in edible concoctions. For the "career" girls and the boys who desire instruction for personal use, there are hundreds of typewriters upon which they may develop speed and accuracy, modern office machines by which they can acquire the latest office techniques.

Thus, through the diversity of these facilities used in instruction, the JT graduate enters his (or more likely her) career in homemaking, business, or both, with a confidence in his ability to do a job within the least amount of time and with the most and best results.

Kathy Gollier proudly exhibits her prize winning cherry pie to classmates in her home economics class. Through profficiency in using kitchen appliances, Kathy was able to bake pies that won her recognition not only at JT, but also in district competition as an "A-1" home-maker of the future.

Mr. Corradetti's typing class also benefits from class instruction through demonstration of telephone correspondence in the office.

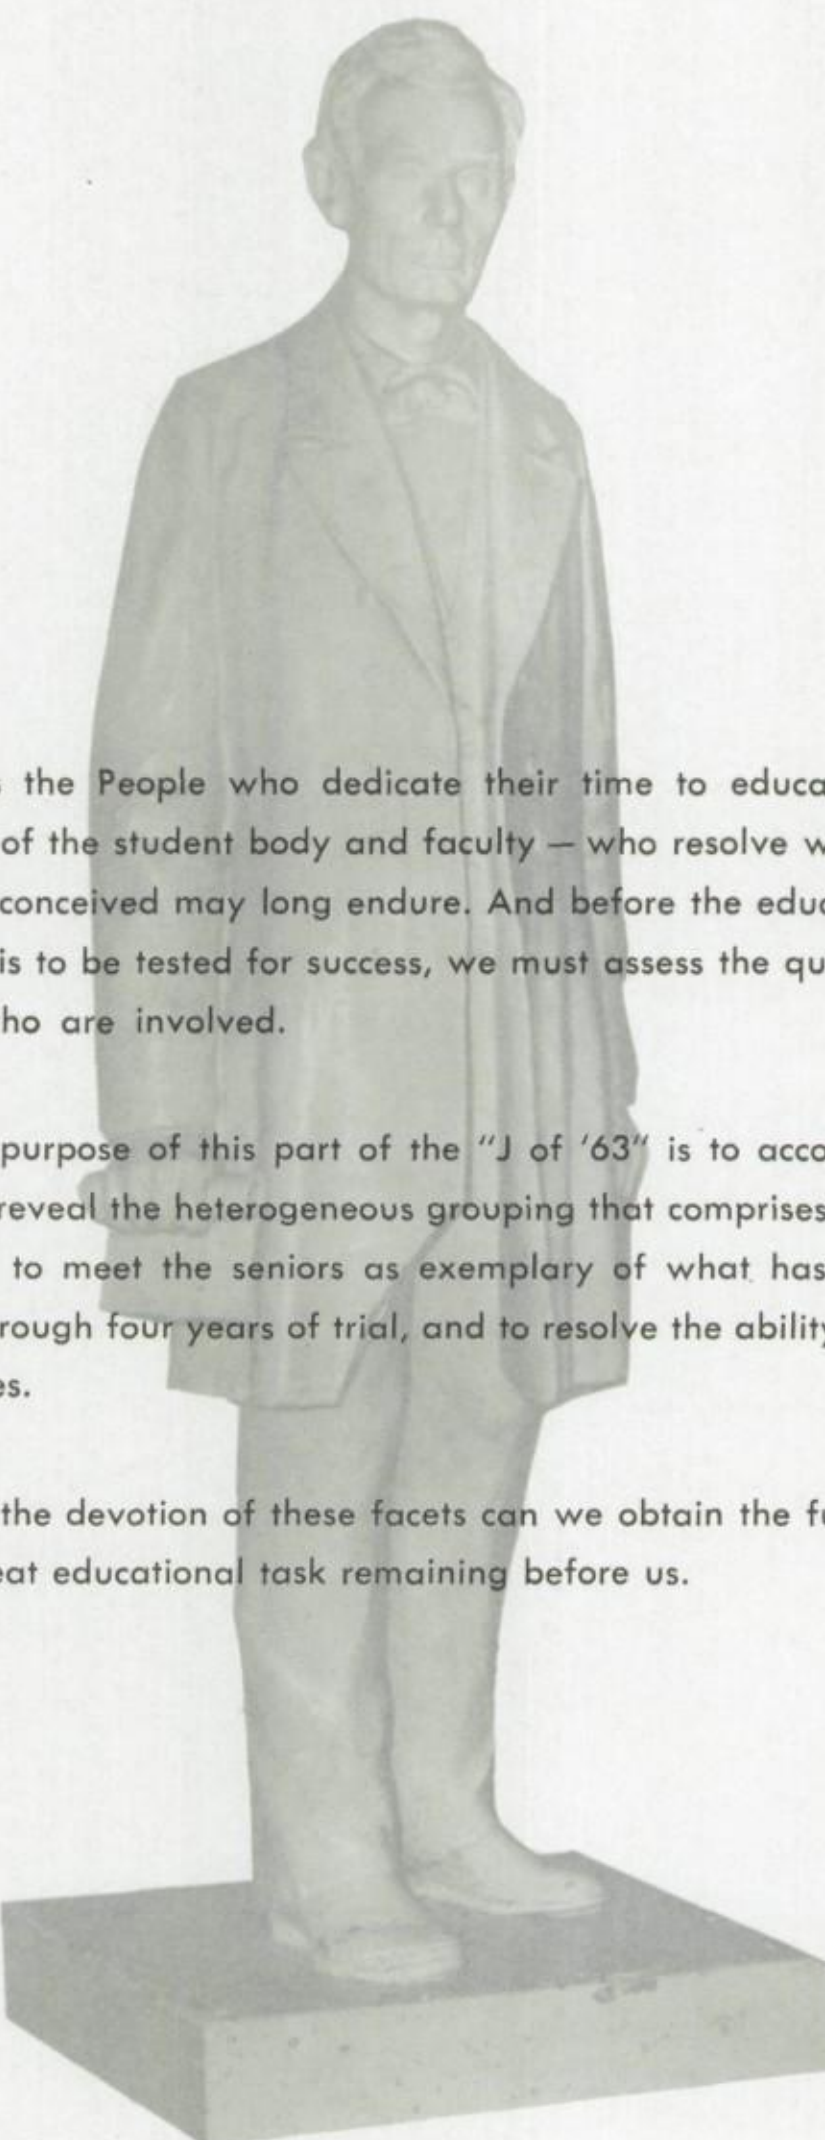

Jane Jorgenson sews an original garment on one of the many sewing machines available in JT sewing rooms.

Modeling fashions of their own making are these four JT sewing experts, and the sisters of one, at D'Amico's. The four models and their fashions are Linda Kropf, wearing a blue-green dress, Linda Jorgenson, posing in a beige coat, Sheryl Engiman, modeling an aqua coat, and Nancy Newkirk, adorning a red suit. The two younger models, Marla and Bobbe, wear nighties made by their sister, Linda Kropf.

It is the People who dedicate their time to education — both members of the student body and faculty — who resolve whether any school so conceived may long endure. And before the educational experiment is to be tested for success, we must assess the quality of the People who are involved.

The purpose of this part of the "J of '63" is to accomplish just that — to reveal the heterogeneous grouping that comprises the underclassmen, to meet the seniors as exemplary of what has nobly advanced through four years of trial, and to resolve the ability of faculty personages.

With the devotion of these facets can we obtain the full measure of the great educational task remaining before us.

U N D E R C L A S S M E N

The underclassmen at Joliet Township High School are truly a heterogeneous grouping of some 3,500 students assigned to nearly 110 homerooms. In this, the underclassmen section of the "J of '63," we will examine some of the procedures undertaken in homeroom to aid records and to teach homeroom members responsibility, while we also find out just who are the underclassmen at JT.

Danny McCarthy, Underclassmen Editor

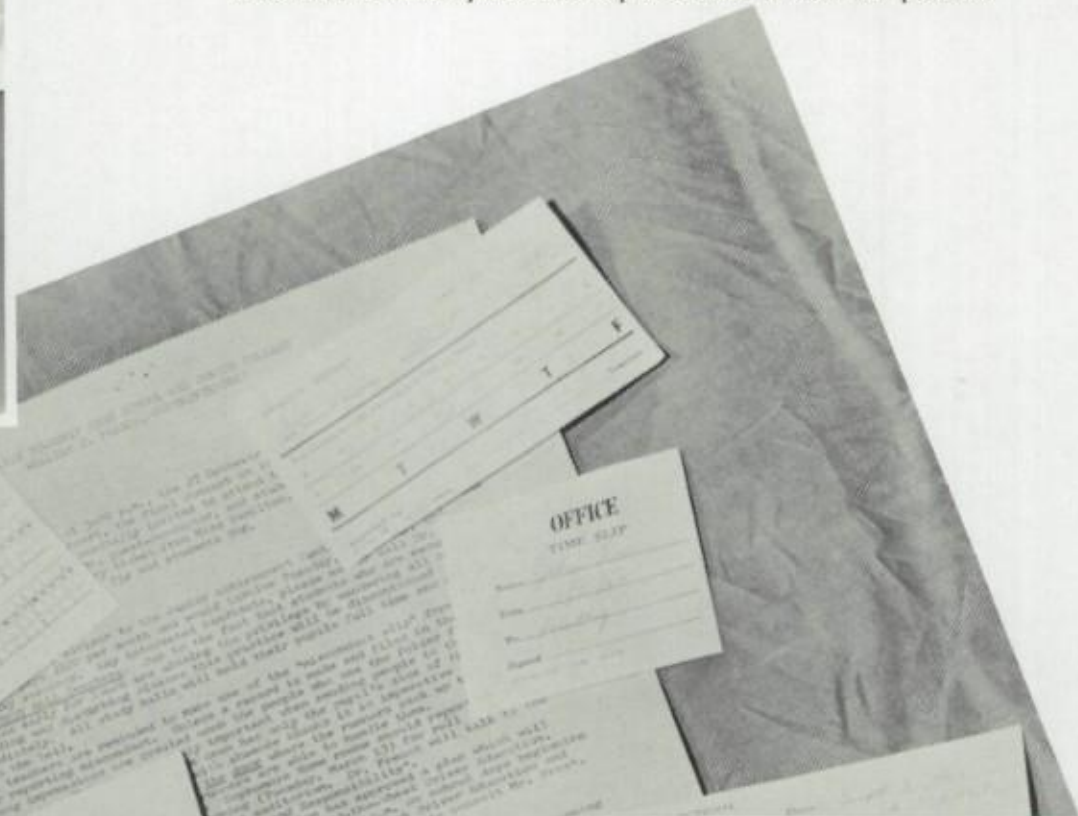

Freshman Begin Another Step in Education

There were 1100 incoming freshmen this fall at J.T., one of them being Judy Ritter. And to "burly" seniors like Jim Walser it was incomprehensible that they were once in such an "inferior" relationship with their "superiors."

Fritz Gibbons receives misleading instructions on how to get to his class from Sue Allen, left, and Minnie Wisneski, seniors who take advantage of the "naive" underclassmen mainly because they were once in a similar position.

The freshmen library has a large collection of biographies, non-fictional, and fictional works from which freshmen, such as Lynn Berglund may choose to supplement their study in classes or to augment their own leisure reading.

Juniors Learn Methods of Communication

-- In English, French, Journalism, Art Classes

J.T. is so constructed that art students may practice drawing at any one of the scenic angles of the school. Here, Sarabeth Jones, fulfills an art class requirement by utilizing the statue at the east center entrance for a charcoal drawing.

Vive la France! French classes provide juniors, and other students, with a general knowledge of French culture as well as grammar. Here Miss Hartman explains one of the elementary culture points to her French I class: Long live France!

There is a great deal of work involved in preparing a J-Hi Journal. Margene Whitler, explains one of her articles which appeared in the paper to the Journalism II class.

S E N I O R S

In June, the Senior Class will gather around the fountain on the east side of the main building for a commemoration of their four years of study at Joliet Township High School. On this memorable occasion, the Ivy Bearer will plant the perennial ivy — symbolic evidence of the Class' future growth and maturity rooted in the foundation of its educational background at JT.

Minnie Wisneski, Senior Class Editor

Achievers Add Luster to Their Brilliance

One boy and one girl from each class are presented each year with the Adams Award which is based on scholastic averages. Members of the class of '63 who have received the awards are, (seated), Marilyn Sleyko, junior year, 95.4; Carol Muren, freshman and sophomore year, 97.1; Joyce Engelhardt, sophomore year, 97.0; and, (standing), Kenneth Terlep, sophomore year, 96.9; Jim McKeown, freshman year, 97.1; Neil Lucas, junior year, 97.0.

Carol Muren is the Daughter of the American Revolution Award Winner. This honor is awarded to a senior girl on the basis of dependability, service, leadership, and patriotism. Selection is made by the senior counselors and Miss Helen Mahany, dean of women. Here Carol is shown accepting the award from Mrs. Harry Overpect. Miss Mahany and Doctor French observe the presentation.

Shirley Leuthner is the recipient of the Pilot Club Award, bestowed upon an outstanding senior girl from one of Joliet's high schools as decided by evaluation of the school deans and councilors. Shirley was invited to a club meeting and presented with a token by which she could remember the occasion. Presenting Shirley with her award is Mrs. Glen Converse.

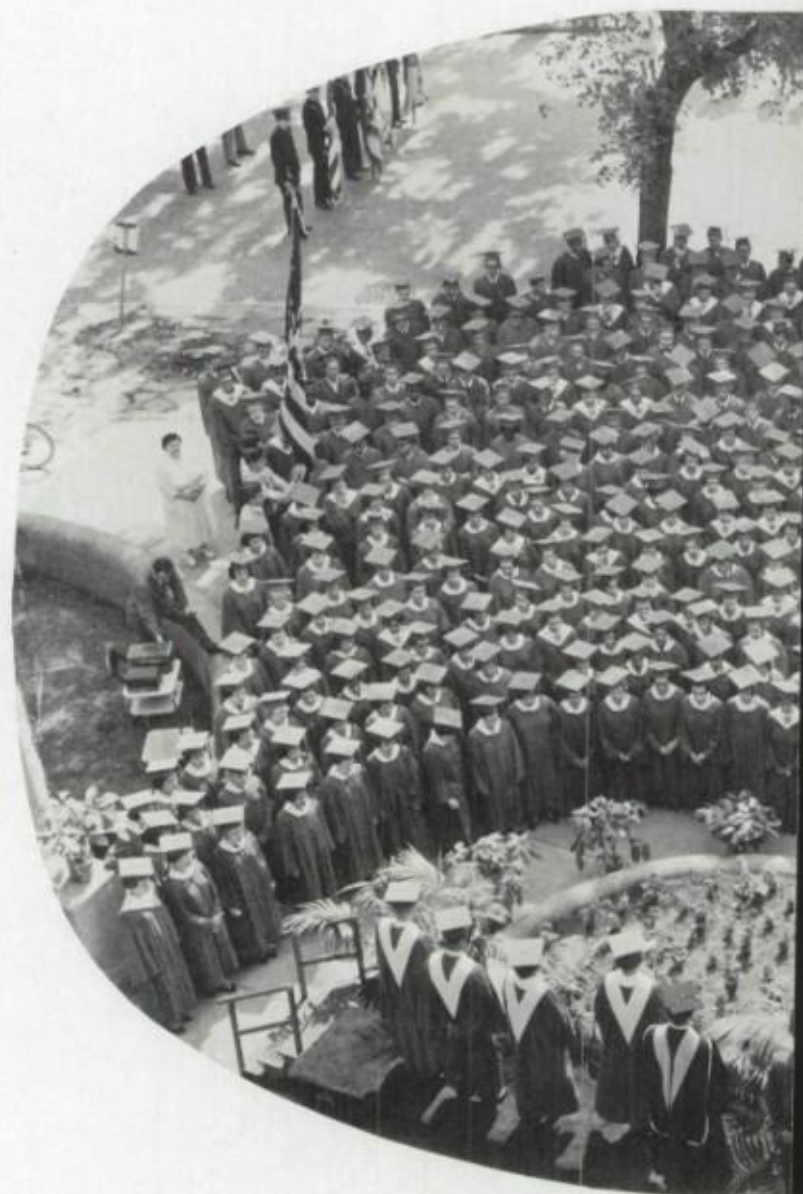

Class Orator, Poet, Speaker, Ivy Bearer Prepare

It may seem "corny" to speak of an "Hour of Decision," but for most of us graduation from high school is such an hour. Judgments made at this time will have a major influence on the rest of our lives. Careful planning and judicious self evaluation are essential if we are to make the most of our talents and live life to its fullest.

— ROBERT JOHNSTON

Robert Johnston practicing for the address to the Senior Class is "caught between syllables."

Ivy Day

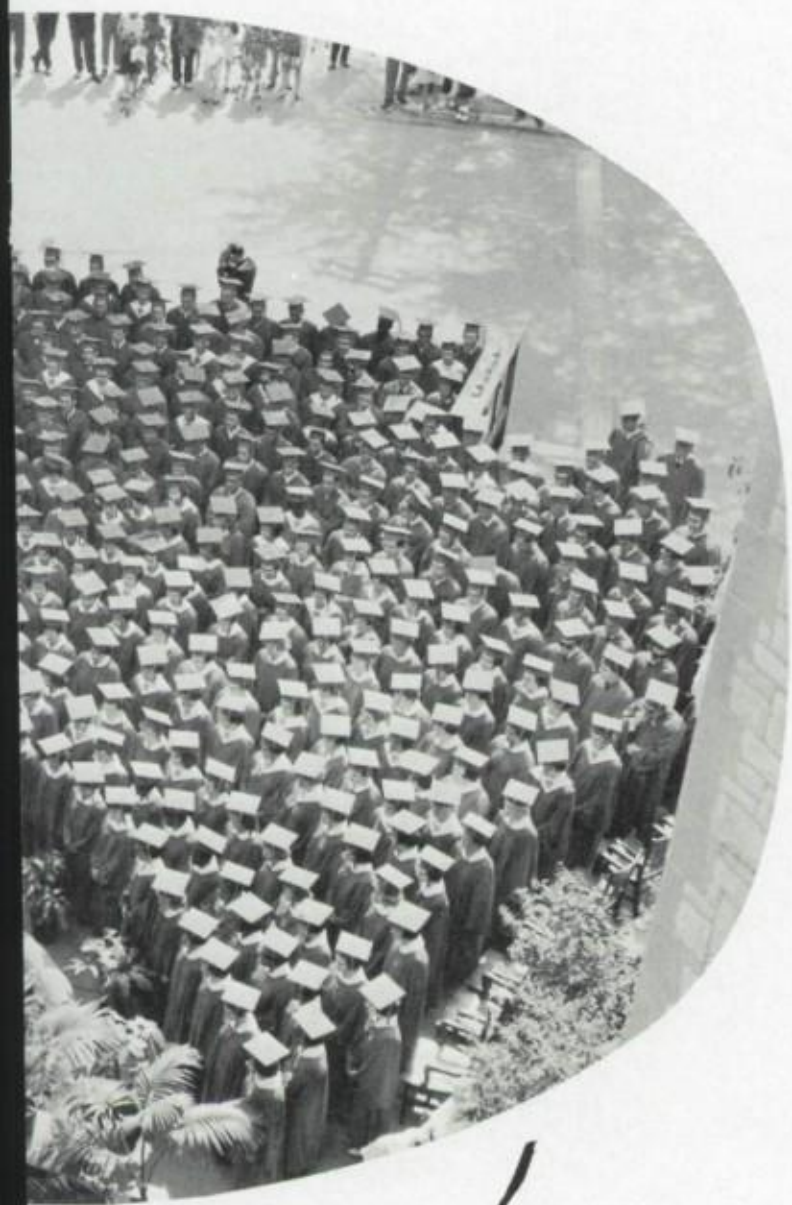

Kathy Salyes, as chosen by her academic and personal record, will plant the ivy for the graduation class of 1963. She is being congratulated and informed of her duties by Miss Mahany, dean of women.

For Ivy Day, Commencement Proceedings

Playing in the warm, white sands
Of a tropic land,
A fragile child erects her fantasies
Only to have them washed away
By the clear, cool surf
The workings of nature
Wandering through the fervent atmosphere
Of strained emotions,
Man builds his visions in the sky
Only to have them eclipsed
By a massive mushroom cloud
The exertions of man
— JUNE SWANGO

The Senior Class Poet, June Swango, double-checks a word in the dictionary for her original poem to be delivered on Ivy Day.

eremony

Shown here with Dr. French is Skip Pauson who is being congratulated for his selection as Senior Class Orator.

Friendship Spans the World as Exchange

Foreign exchange students are usually map conscious and Margarethe is no exception. Here she takes delight in pointing out her homeland on a map of Europe.

Study time has a penchant of coming around quite frequently, but Margarethe is always equal to the challenge because of highly developed study habits.

Margarethe Bagh, an exchange student from Rhineland, Germany, came to the United States in August of 1962. She is residing with the Donald B. Morse family, 1002 Winthrop Avenue. The family includes two daughters — Pat, a senior, and Beth, a sophomore.

Sweden, England, France, Switzerland, Holland, and Belgium, represent the countries she has toured previously.

She has had four years of Grade-School and nine years of High-School. She still has two more years of High-School, then plans to study Law at the Free University of Berlin.

Students Earn Admiration of Americans

The Charles J. McKeown Family and Dave: Standing: Mr. McKeown, Jim, Dave. Seated: Mrs. McKeown, Patricia.

One of Dave's hobbies is collecting pennants and his travels have afforded him opportunities to pick up some rare varieties. His "conversation pieces" are displayed on all walls of his room.

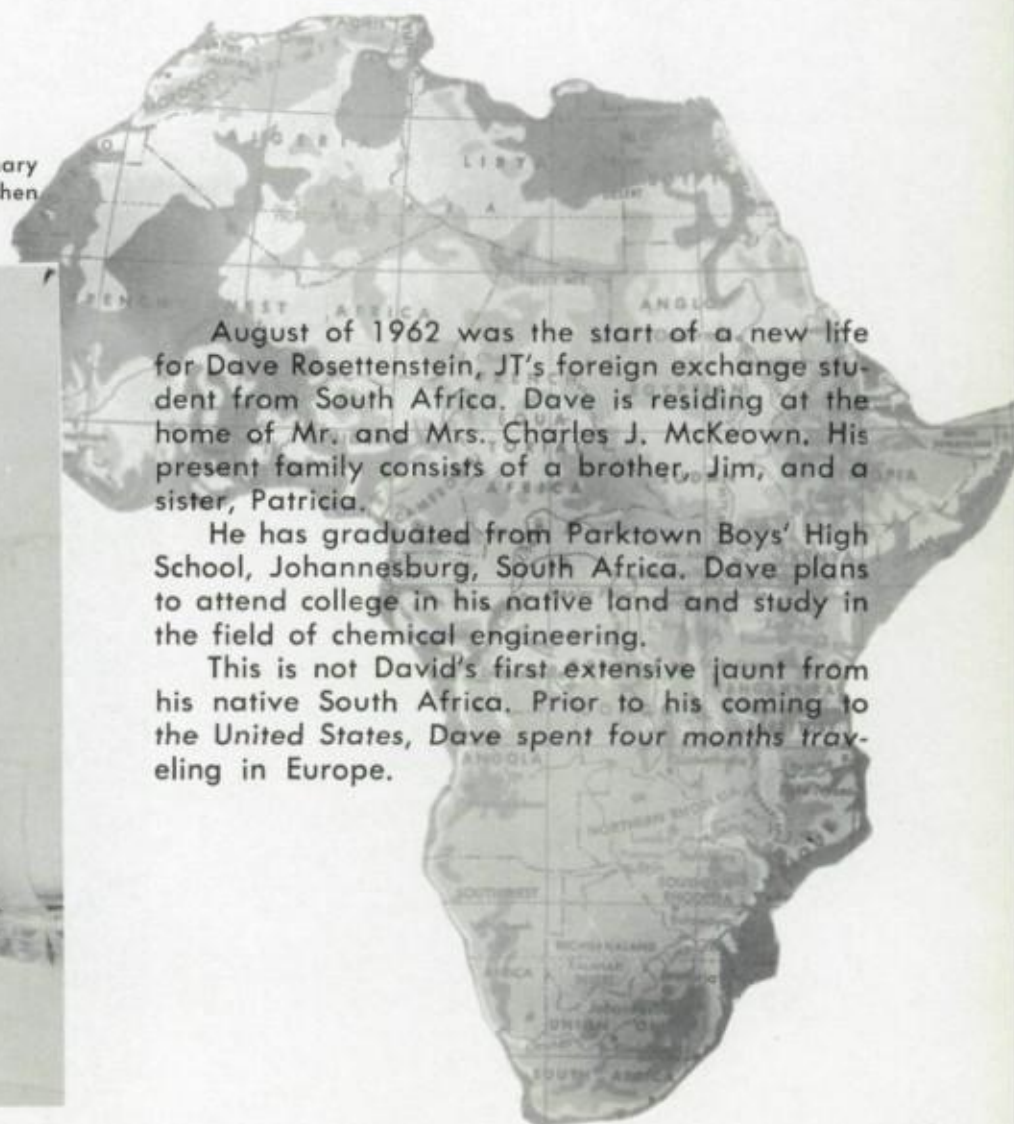

There finally comes a time when all other activity must retire in favor of study—the primary function of an exchange student. Dave is as reluctant as the next to get at it, but, when study time comes, he grinds out a lot of competent work.

August of 1962 was the start of a new life for Dave Rosettenstein, JT's foreign exchange student from South Africa. Dave is residing at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. McKeown. His present family consists of a brother, Jim, and a sister, Patricia.

He has graduated from Parktown Boys' High School, Johannesburg, South Africa. Dave plans to attend college in his native land and study in the field of chemical engineering.

This is not David's first extensive jaunt from his native South Africa. Prior to his coming to the United States, Dave spent four months traveling in Europe.

F A C U L T Y

The implements used in instruction are, of course, essential for the most efficient, up-to-date transfer of knowledge from teacher to student. But these devices in themselves can only be as effective as their employers are resourceful, and by their qualifications, Joliet Township High School faculty members exhibit a thorough knowledge of how to use the tools of their trade.

to Formulate, Execute School Policy

MR. GUY HAINES
Dean of Boys

MISS HELEN MAHANY
Dean of Girls

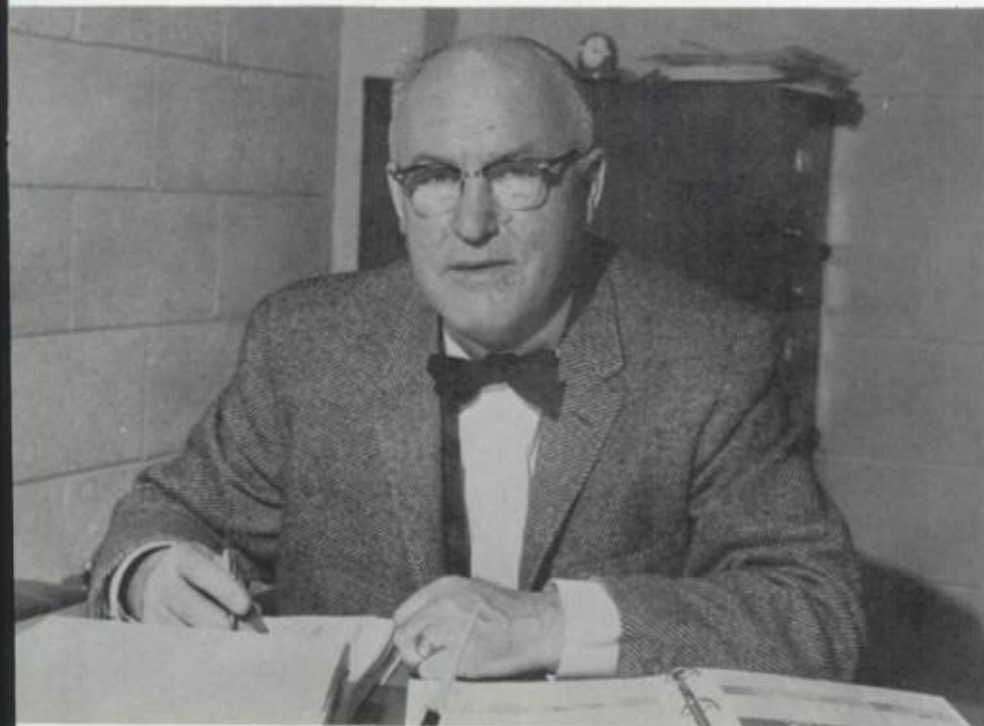

MR. GEORGE HANKINSON
Business Manager

The Joliet Township High School Board of Education works with the school administration to establish an overall school policy, provide educational equipment, employ personnel, and fix salaries. Also within the Board's power is to approve payment of employees and all bills, dismiss teachers, suspend or expel students, and to sell obsolete equipment. An issue to which the Board must devote much time and attention is the planning which is necessary for the two new high schools. They must go about the planning of a curriculum, purchasing of equipment, and hiring of teachers.

Working in close connection with the administrators are the deans and business manager. Besides dealing with discipline problems, the deans perform several other vital tasks. They are members of the student scholarship committee and National Honor Society committee and choose many of the award winners.

Chairmen of Departments

Each of Joliet Township High School's twenty-one departments operate under a supervising chairman who coordinates the teaching program of his academic area. These department heads are appointed to their posts by the superintendent with the approval of the Board of Education. In addition to performing executive duties, department chairmen assume a heavy teaching load, and, in some cases, have homeroom responsibilities. The chairman makes decisions regarding teaching methods for the course work and procedure in each of her

For his academic field, outlines courses of study for each teaching assignment, approves textbooks and updates reference materials for use in his department, and presides at department meetings. He arranges for substitute teachers, assigns classrooms for the teachers in his department, balances the number of students in each class, and makes regular reports to the superintendent. With a sense of responsibility and a quality of reliability, these academic leaders are truly dedicated educators.

Counselors Guide Students' Curriculum

Junior Class Counselors
Mr. Perry Goranson, Miss Lucile Stewart, and Mr. Charles Woolard.

Several of the many phases of the counselors' jobs include orientation of eighth grade students entering JT, handling academic programming and assignment of classes, and offering additional services such as information on college, career, and scholarship opportunities. Besides individual counseling, the counselors conduct group guidance meetings and act as a source of information for teachers concerning students.

The counselors deal with academic and career problems while personal problems are referred to the social worker. The social worker can expertly deal with the student's school life and his relationship with society.

Service to School Is Objective of Office Staffs

Charged with the duty of keeping a daily record of attendance and tardiness, the attendance office staff, Mrs. Marjorie Enderson, and Mrs. Agnes O'Connor, seated, and standing, Mrs. Goldie Koshak and Mrs. Loraine Brown, also issue "nights," process new student enrollment, and maintain a complete file of student program cards.

Members of the JT health services department, under the direction of Mrs. Dorothy Ruthenbeck, left, administer first aid to any student or faculty member and maintain complete health records of all students. Other department members are Mrs. Elizabeth Johnston, center, and Mrs. Marjorie Nance.

The employees of the business office, Mrs. Verna Carey, Mrs. Leona Hrivnak, and Miss Laura Schumm, seated, and, standing, Mrs. Marjorie Harrison, Mrs. Bea Walsh, and Mrs. Bea Fisher, transact voluminous business at JT each day.

Faculty Members Utilize Their Leisure Time In Socializing

At a new teachers tea, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Collins enjoy the friendly atmosphere of JT.

Miss Jennie Hamilton will retire this year after many years of service as secretary to the superintendent. She is shown here with Mrs. Verna Carey, who will replace her. Mrs. Carey is transferring to the general office from her post of business office manager.

A group of new JT teachers put aside school topics and enjoy a friendly chat with their new acquaintances. Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins, Mr. Minor, and Mr. and Mrs. Tyrell are shown.

After coaching a championship football team to an undefeated season, these JT teachers were lauded at a banquet, sponsored by the Joliet Chamber of Commerce. Pictured here are backfield coach Frank Miller, Mr. Vance Cummins, banquet chairman, head coach Ray Klootwyk, and line coach Howie Scheidt.

The School and its facilities provide a basis upon which the People work, and, we hope, advance. And, although they are essential for progress, these facilities are worthless in themselves. It is the People, of course, who progress by utilizing what they are afforded with their utmost.

As we have seen in the previous two parts of this book, the many factors that comprise Joliet Township High School provide a superlative atmosphere for educational advancement, and the students and faculty are entirely capable of using these factors for their own achievement. But these two factions are incomplete for our assessment; they must be combined to determine whether a success or failure has been attained for educational progress during the 1962-1963 school year.

This revelation is the intention of the final part of the "J." We will examine the methods of application by the People of the School in extra-curricular, as well as academic endeavor.

By so doing, we will have completed the educational experiment.

Mrs. E. Dellinger checks attendance in study hall 155 as the students diligently attend to completing homework for coming classes — classes in practically everything pertaining to a high school curriculum encompassing accounting to zoology — taught from 7:30 A.M. to 5:00 P.M. and during evenings in night school in fall, winter, spring, and summer.

Kathy Shaw, Academic Editor

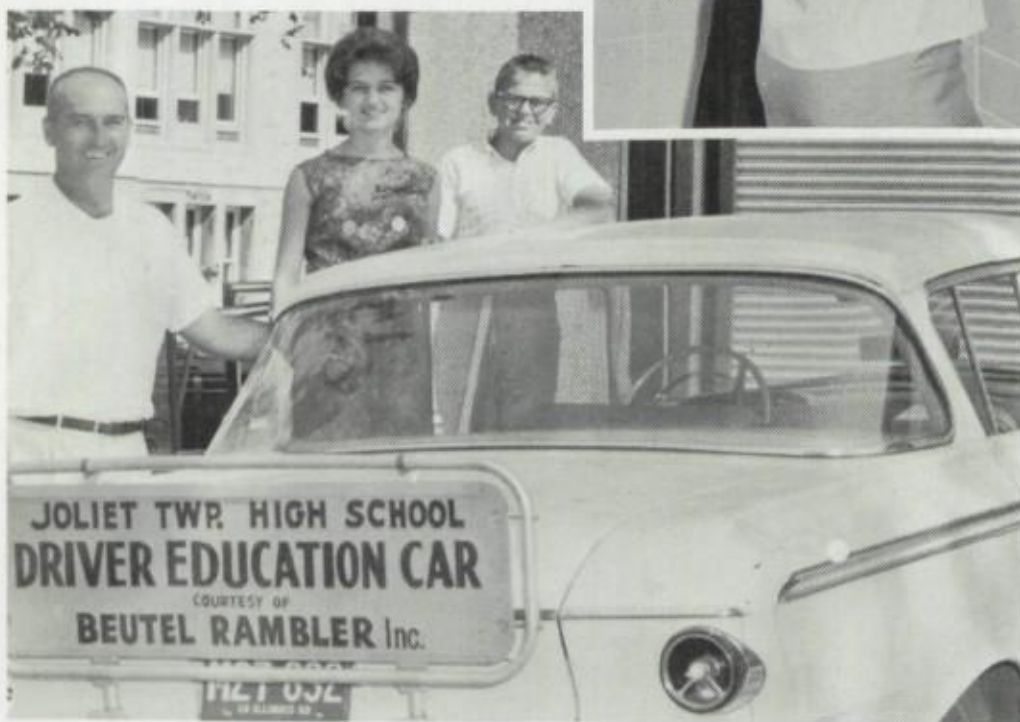

Ambitious Students

Joliet Township High School is an institution of learning during every season. Its halls and classrooms are brought to life in the summer by students from surrounding areas who wish to earn credits and/or enrich their educational program.

The walk in front of JT is a favorite meeting place for summer students before and after classes.

Driver education is a popular summer course. Students receive both practical and experimental training. Mr. Burgett looks pleased as Mable Nerd and Van Houbolt complete their first lesson.

Mary Tinnerello and Joyce Park pause at a mirror to freshen up between classes.

Summer School Director Clarence D. Stallman retains his smile even though his time is occupied keeping the school in "full swing" during the hot summer months.

Mr. Harry Leinenweber makes a phone call to make sure attendance records are correct, while Mrs. Gunchon comp other vital data.

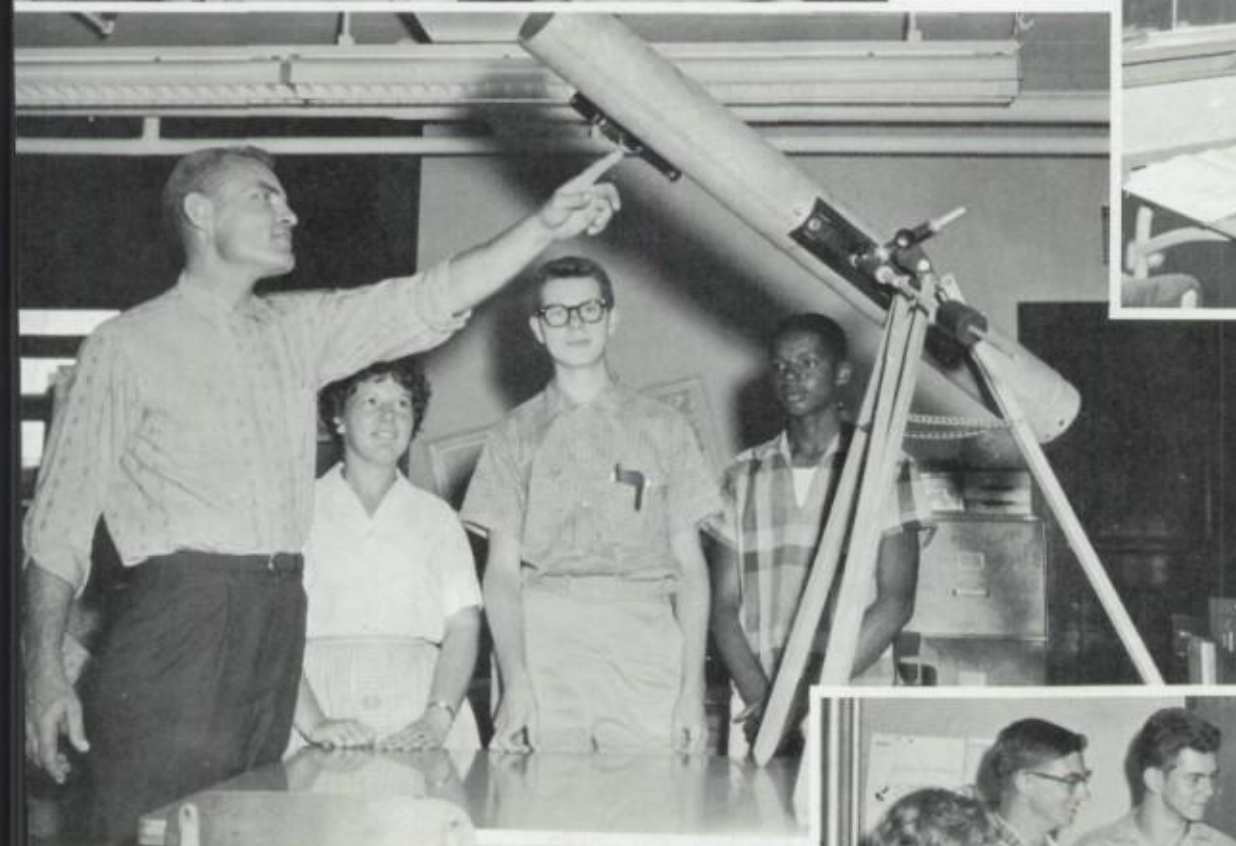

Enrich Program Through Summer Study

Prompted by a field study session on the Gulf of Mexico during the summer, marine biology offers an unusual course in the study of under-water life. Mr. Charles Schoenknecht proudly exhibits the specimens collected by his students during the summer session to JT principal Clarence D. Stallman. The "biologists" are Dan Bergstom, Charles Marshall and Bonnie Schoenknecht.

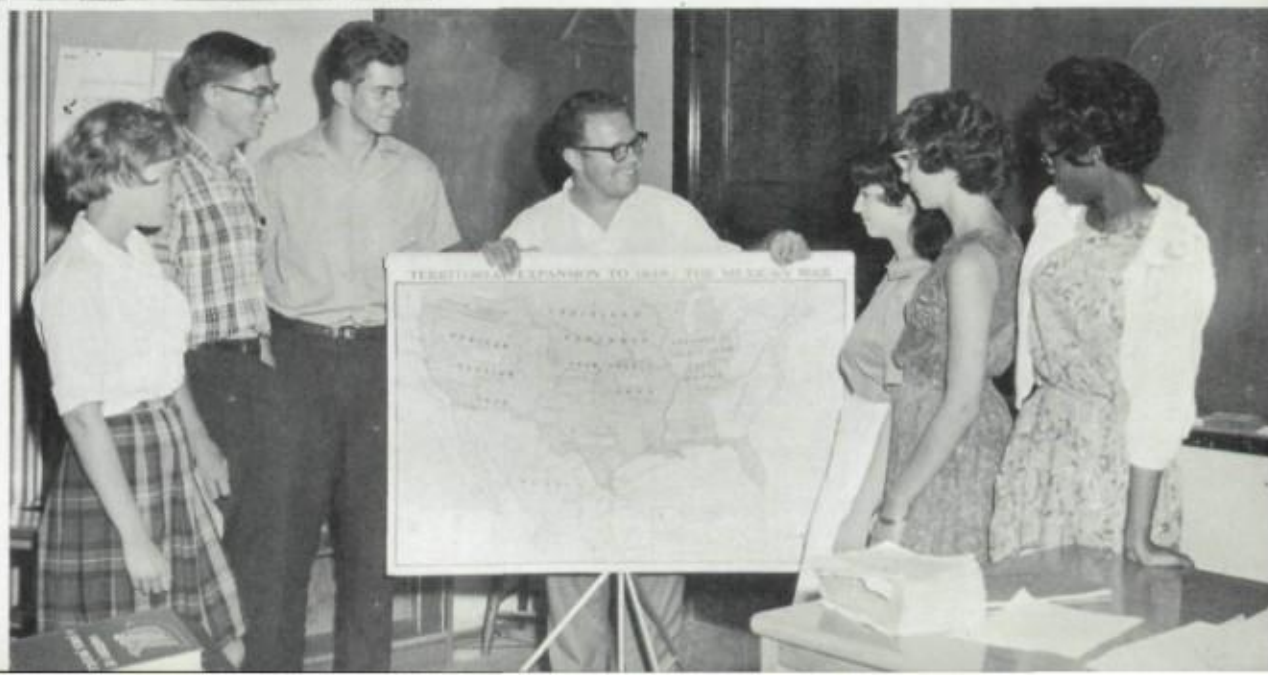

Mr. Robert Mallary explains the finer points of speech demonstration as Betty Burzawa applies a little goo here and there to Georgene Turk.

Mr. Don Esworthy explains complicated trigonometry diagrams. The students ponder and learn.

Mr. William Odenthal's Earth Science Class finds astronomy fascinating. Subtitle: "Star Gazing Can Be Fun."

These students find maps informative and very helpful in Mr. Leland Thornton's U.S. History class.

Spoken and Written Words Convey

One of the most important English courses offered is College Preparatory English which gives the college-bound students a forward look into the type of work that they will be doing. Mrs. Grider adequately prepares them for the role they will assume in college.

The English language is the basis for all personal communication in this land of ours—America. English then, is also the foundation of the American educational system. Much time at JT is devoted to the teaching of effective writing, correct grammar and spelling, poised and assured speech, the study of great literature, and creative speaking and writing. The use of visual aids and combined teaching methods enliven English classes and make them much more progressive than in years past.

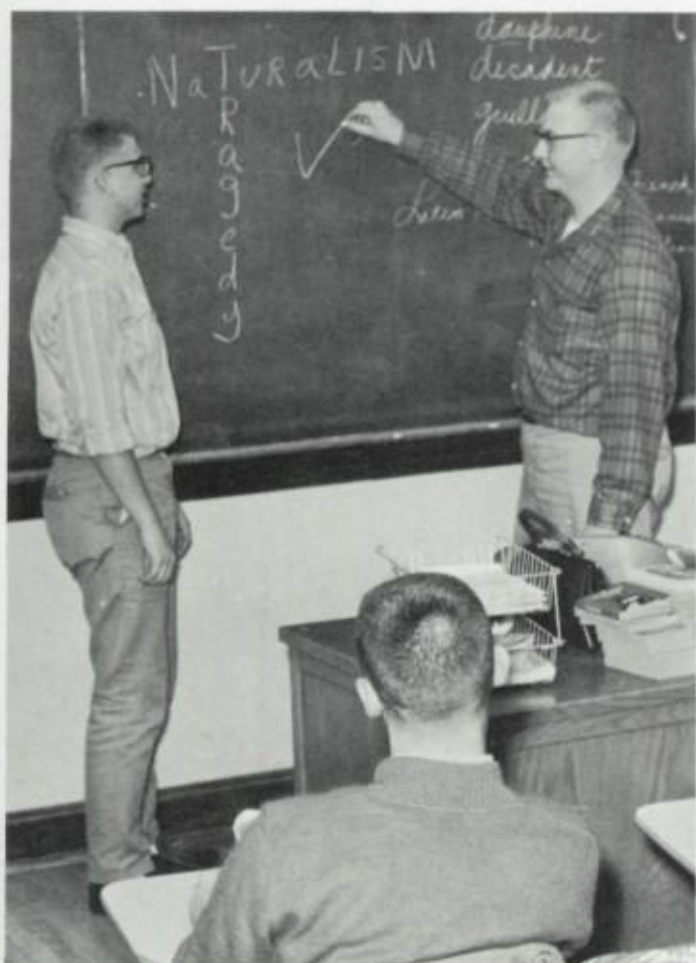

Mr. Denison's journalism classes enable JT students to try their hands at all types of publications work. Here, Margene Whitler points out a particularly interesting article which appeared in the J Hi Journal.

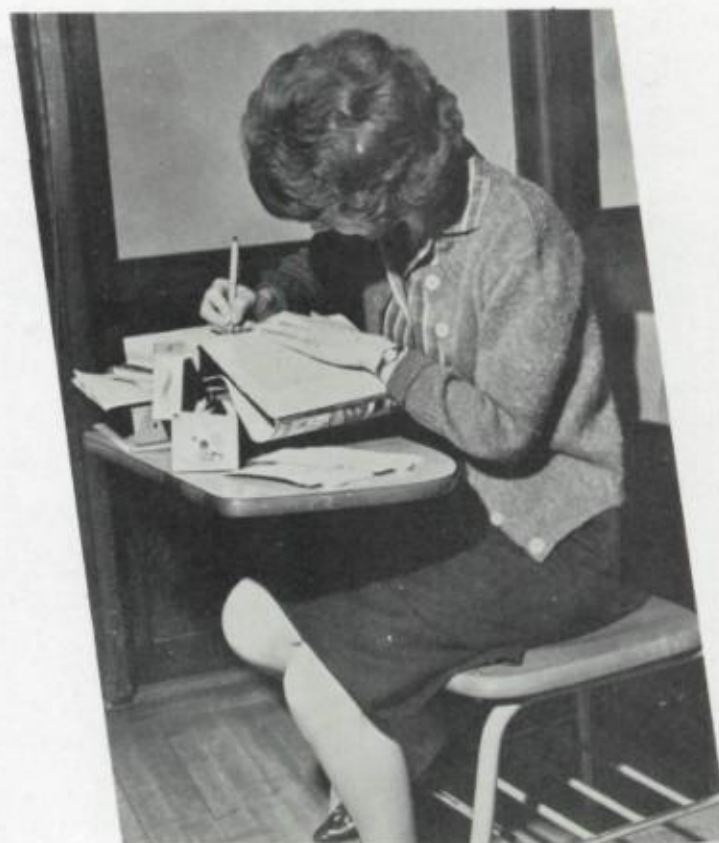

Kathy Rogers and Joanne Cabraro display their dramatic talents being brought to light in a class devoted to the dramatic arts. Perhaps in one of these classes is budding the great actors and actresses of the future.

and Record Great Thoughts and Ideas

Chuck Hawes and Gary Odewaldt discuss the important parts played by naturalism and tragedy in world literature. In this class, famous works from all over the world span the ages and are studied and enjoyed by JT students. Other literature courses offered are American literature in the Sophomore year and English literature in the Senior year.

The necessity of clear thinking and writing, material arrangement, and choice of subject are stressed by several English courses that require term papers. Sue Tarlini is busy working on hers . . . and hoping for an "A."

A new innovation at JT is the combined English classes. Here both students and teachers find possibilities unlimited. The atmosphere is relaxed, and ideas come readily.

Foreign Languages Unlock the Foreign languages are becoming a more and more important part of the academic program at J.T. With the ever shrinking world, the languages of other countries must be learned in order to understand our "nextdoor neighbors." Such understanding will insure the peace of the world in years to come.

Don Clark and Carolyn Heidel state that they would find shopping in a German super-market even more confusing than it is here in the U.S.A.

Sue Junk finds the language of Germany as fascinating as the customs and people.

Projects are an important part of the Spanish curriculum. Myra Berk, Jim Frank, and Jo Jump display some of the more recent projects turned in by the students in the class.

"Hurrah for the red, white, and green!" Miss Frenk and Barb Harris display the Spanish flag while discussing the important phases of the history of Spain.

Gateway to Understanding

Ron Jugenitz puts a sample of his homework on the blackboard under Miss Hartman's scrutinization. "Use this as an example, class."

Latin class provides an opportunity to learn the language of the past that lives today. Students also become acquainted with Caesar and his cohorts. Annette Williams enjoys her acquaintanceship with Julius.

An ardent French student, Barb King, takes time out of her busy day to get in a little extra study.

Mr. Bluth points out some of the more famous Roman works of art ...Latin class is never lacking in culture!

Students Learn To Make Numbers Work

Mathematics, the universal "language," is vital no matter what phase of life one may choose to enter. From mechanic to house wife, to doctor or scientist, a good basic foundation of the mathematical processes is necessary to comprehend the fundamental problems encountered in day to day life. Once these processes are conquered, the possibilities of their uses are endless.

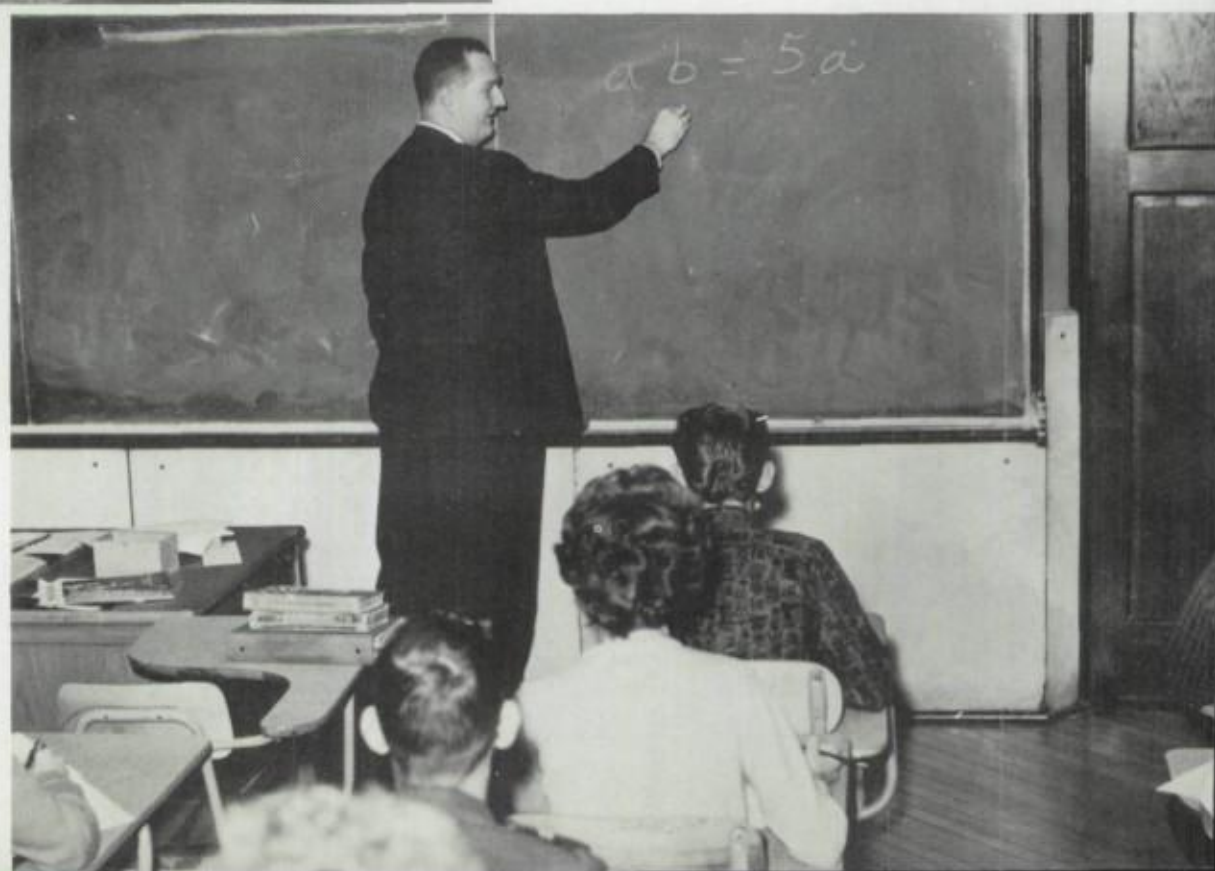

Miss Hooper helps Chuck McDonald work a difficult algebra problem on the blackboard for use as an example in class instruction.

Charla Dentin and Denny Gardener compare their "home made" models to demonstrate the function of solid geometry. Mrs. Armstrong looks on with a smile as her students show signs of gaining knowledge, and thereby bringing the ultimate sense of accomplishment to the teacher.

Mr. Richard starts out his algebra class by putting a simple problem on the board for the students to ponder. Soon enough they will be working much more difficult and advanced problems dealing with pluses and minuses and fractions.

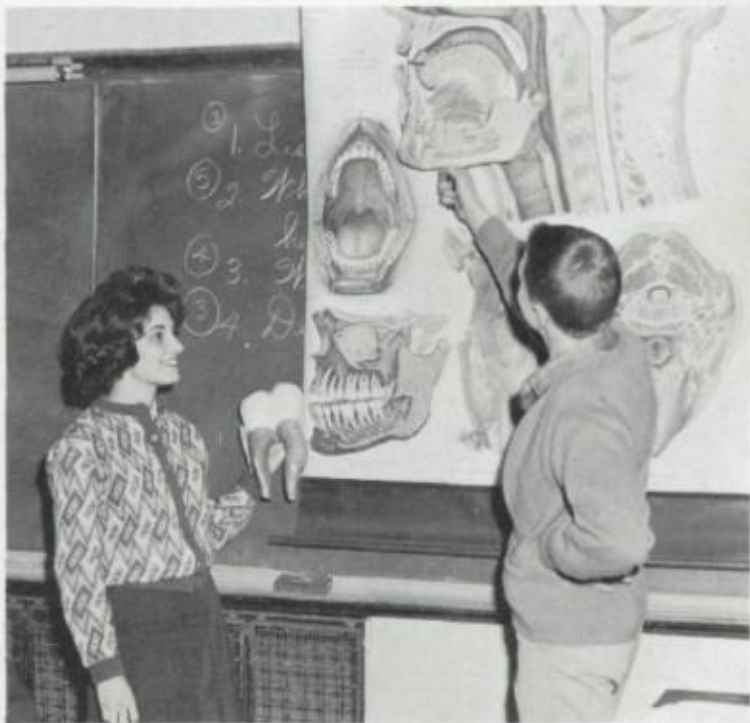

Sciences Survey Atomic Age Understanding

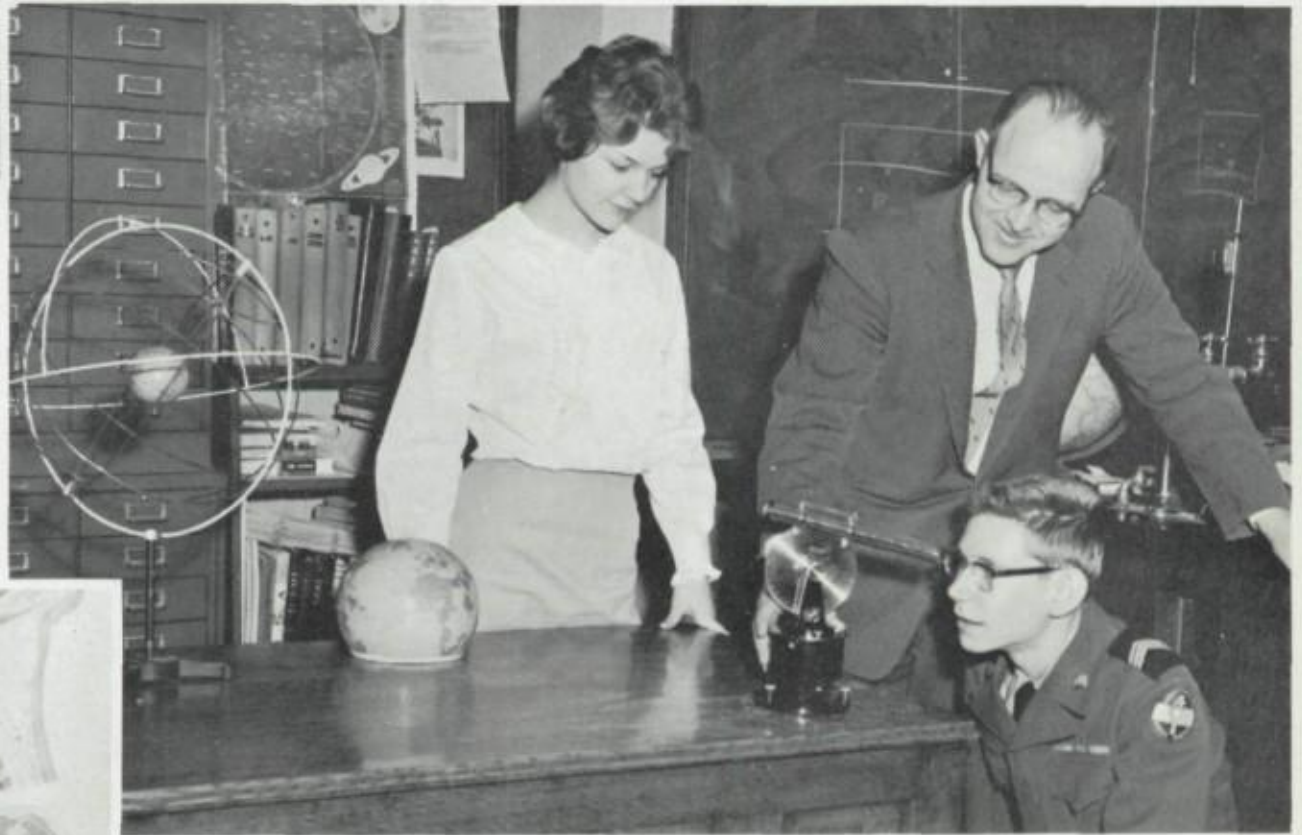

Mr. Hopkins, chairman of the physics department, uses much equipment during the course of the school year. Fill Bustin, Rich Meyers, and Curt Horn observe a class demonstration of the Van De Graaf (Linear Accelerator).

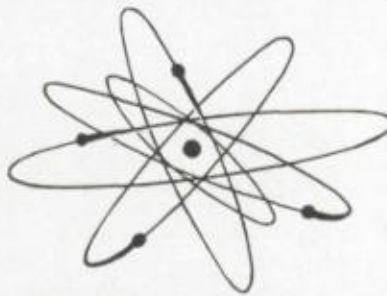

Carol Merenic and Dennis Miller hold up gigantic versions of teeth and jaw bones. "Perhaps some elephant somewhere is mourning the loss of that tooth," they think. But according to Mr. Wimberly, health instructor, this particular phase of health makes certain students tired . . . notice the open mouth . . . YAWN!

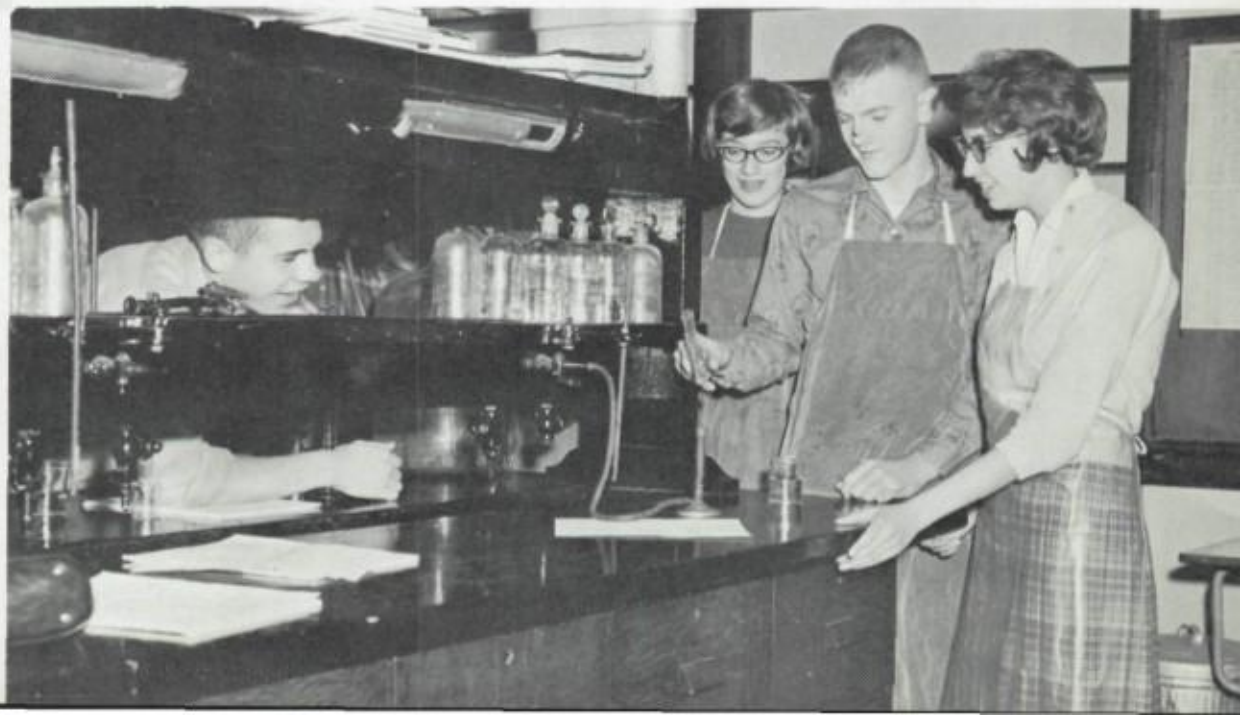

In this day and age of missiles and atomic power, scientists find it hard to keep up with new scientific methods and theories. Old ideas and techniques are quickly becoming obsolete. Research is opening up vast new fields and offers many rewards to those who wish to probe these areas, and here at JT the students certainly have access to the latest apparatus to begin their careers in the most important fields.

Space science is a popular newly-formed class devoted to the study of outer space. Mr. Graham shows Fred Hahn how to use the transit telescope, while Elaine Voelker pays close attention, namely because her turn comes next.

Ken Skinner holds a test tube containing a newly devised formula (ala Skinner) over the bunsen burner as Pat Morris and Karen Lenz observe with just a few misgivings. Is that a secret agent peering between the bottles? No, it's only Paul Weiss, who's being a bit more cautious than his colleagues in daily chemistry class.

History, Human Nature, Are Cores of Social Studies

The social studies department is essential to the school. In order for a student to have a well-rounded education, he must comprehend the workings of human nature, why the world is as it is, and the functions of the American government that make America what it is today — an example and ideal to other countries less fortunate than we.

Miss Torkar, student teacher, finds this senior world history class a very receptive group. They find learning about ancient civilizations much more real under the guidance of Miss Torkar. Class participation is an important part of learning and exchanging thoughts.

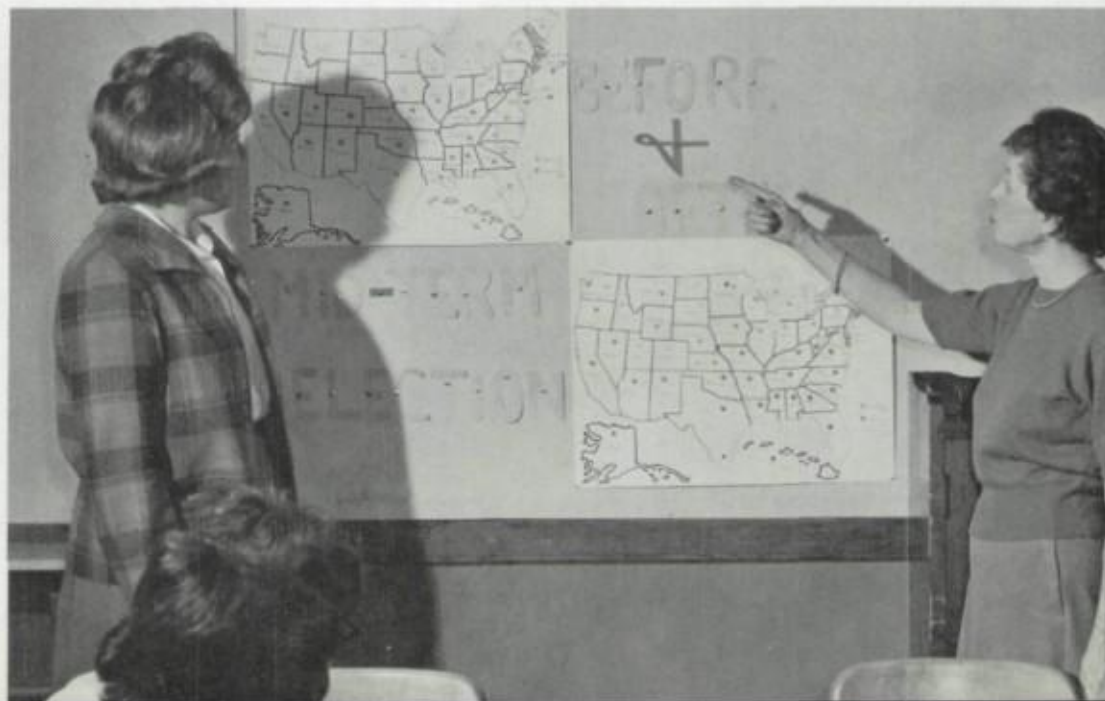

Deep in thought, Mr. Burns' U.S. History class learns the background which has made this country of ours all that it is today. The people, the places, the incidents all come to life in panoramic visions which plant themselves in the minds of the students.

Jim Brumond and Sloan Piecer add to their knowledge by reading maps in Mr. Jensen's economics class. Money, being as valuable as it is, is considered an important and vital part of the social studies program.

Betty Jane Rostan "gets the facts" in Miss Laubscher's American Government class. Here again, maps and graphs are used to their fullest extent for the benefit of the students as they help teachers to "get their point across."

From the Printed Word Flows Insight

Student librarians are ready, willing, and most able to help other students find the very book they need among the thousands of books contained in the high school library. Two of these helpful assistants are Mike O'Malley, and Holly Smith.

Bill Simpson finds exactly the material he needs at the periodical rack in the JT freshman library.

In the quiet of the freshman library, students find time well spent. . . in fact any time spent in any library will pay dividends in later life.

Tom Anderson carefully selects a book to be drawn from the high school library. There are books here for everyone, be they reference material, biographies, scientific data, or "just plain books read for nothing but pleasure."

JT is the proud possessor of two very well equipped libraries — the freshman library and the high school library. Here students may come from study halls, and before and after school to study or make use of excellent reference materials available. Professional librarians and student assistants are on hand to aid one in finding "that particular book."

Chuck Zola is becoming very proficient with the saw in wood shop. His fellow classmate, however, seems to be worrying just a little as to the safety of Chuck's fingers.

Print shop is another shop course offered at JT. This course utilizes once more the excellent facilities available in the shop building. Print shop teaches the setting of type and the use of printing presses. Seeing your name in print here is doubly rewarding because of the satisfaction of doing it yourself.

JT is proud to offer several fine shop courses to boys (and girls) interested in training in these fields: electrical work, metal, wood working, printing, and auto mechanics. The technical arts building officially opened for use in the school year of 1958-59. Since then, many a young man has left its doors knowing his life's occupation.

Shop Courses Train Young Men (Women, Too!)

Electric shop affords practical training for interested young men. Much time is spent learning how to use electrical equipment under the supervision of Mr. Engelhardt. Much is learned also about everyday gadgets such as how a fuse box is put together or what to do if the toaster won't pop up. These students pictured below are studying the different types of wire that may be used.

Mr. Siron explains to his class "just which wire to connect where" as Ron Johnson and Richard Davenport demonstrate.

A few girls have ventured through the shop doors. Perhaps it looks a little strange to see a girl in what is considered mainly a boy's domain, but in the ever-expanding need for technically trained people, girls are accepted into this boy's domain without a second thought. Whether the training being sought is to be used for a life's occupation or merely just to gather knowledge to be used in everyday life, young men and women of tomorrow will find the training gained in the shop courses indispensable.

Mr. Ehart shows two student mechanics, Richard Brockman and Pete Hobert, that the underside of a car needs as much attention as the inside.

Manuel Tamayo is very intent on his work. Much caution must be taken when working with machines; this point is stressed in all shop courses in the hope that it may prevent accidents in later years. The boys are taught to respect machines that save them time and effort.

for Technical Careers, Everyday Life

Dale Tolf and Terry Braumberg explore the fascinating innerds of the automobile and learn what each little part plays in the workings of the auto. Being able to get a broken down car running again brings not only headaches, at times, but also a much greater sense of pride and satisfaction. Nowadays a car is a must . . . and to know how it works is an equal must. As a result, auto shop is one of the most popular courses for boys at JT.

School Provides Testing Ground for Future Homemakers

"Can she bake a cherry pie, Billy boy, Billy boy?" She certainly can! Mrs. Bonar beams with pride over her student, Kathy Gellier, winner of the cherry pie contest. Her fellow students look on with envy.

Sandra Morgan puts the sewing machine in the home economics room to full time use as often as possible. Choosing materials, picking patterns and sewing them together gives Sandy a real thrill: "It is nice to be complemented on an outfit that you make yourself," she attests.

The study of child care is one of the topics discussed in Miss Smith's home economics class. Mrs. James Grant, mother of one of the students, visited the class and demonstrated the bathing of an infant. This lesson was later related to other factors in infant care. What will JT try next? This certainly was a "first."

Home economics courses afford the very best kind of training for JT girls interested in either becoming home economists or gaining experience to be used in everyday family situations. Elementary cooking and sewing are offered, and after the basics are learned, there are advanced courses that may be entered. Also considered a home economics course is family living which deals with family life and child care. Home economics training is priceless to any girl who wishes to make her future house a home.

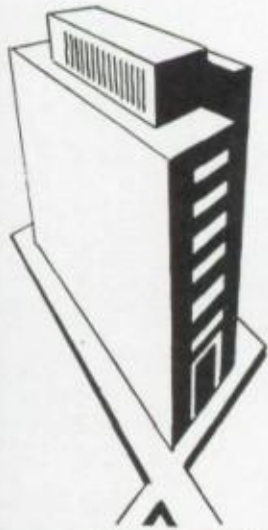

The "clip clip" of the scissors and the "hummm" of the sewing machines are noises constantly present in Miss Ochs' home economics room. Pieces of fabric almost magically fit together, and out comes the finished product...a skirt, blouse, dress, suit, or coat.

Training Office Implements Machinery Will Never Replace

Mrs. Goodwin checks Rosemary Fragle's typing efforts. It seems so easy once you "get the hang of it." Now where did you say the dollar sign was? Rosemary is trying her hand at typing from her shorthand notes...and doing very well, judging by the grin.

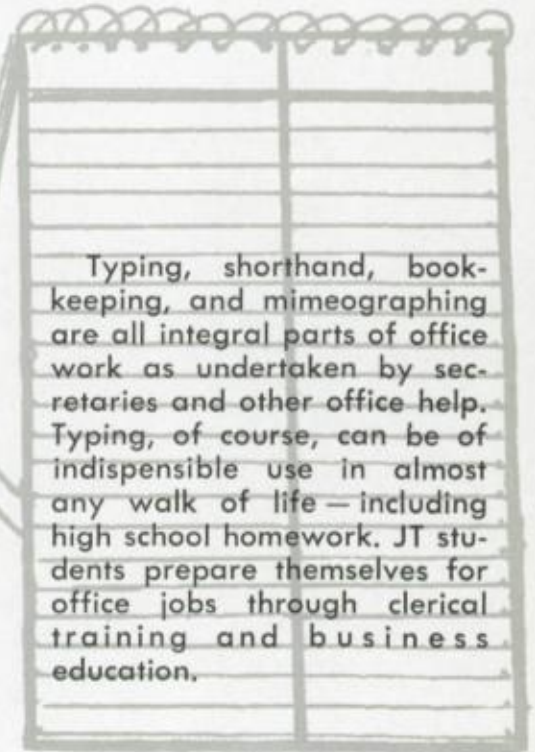

Janice Purdy, Bonnie Dolak and Georgia Patten are learning while becoming increasingly better at running the mimeograph machine. Consequently, page after page of neatly dittoed material proves the girls' proficiency.

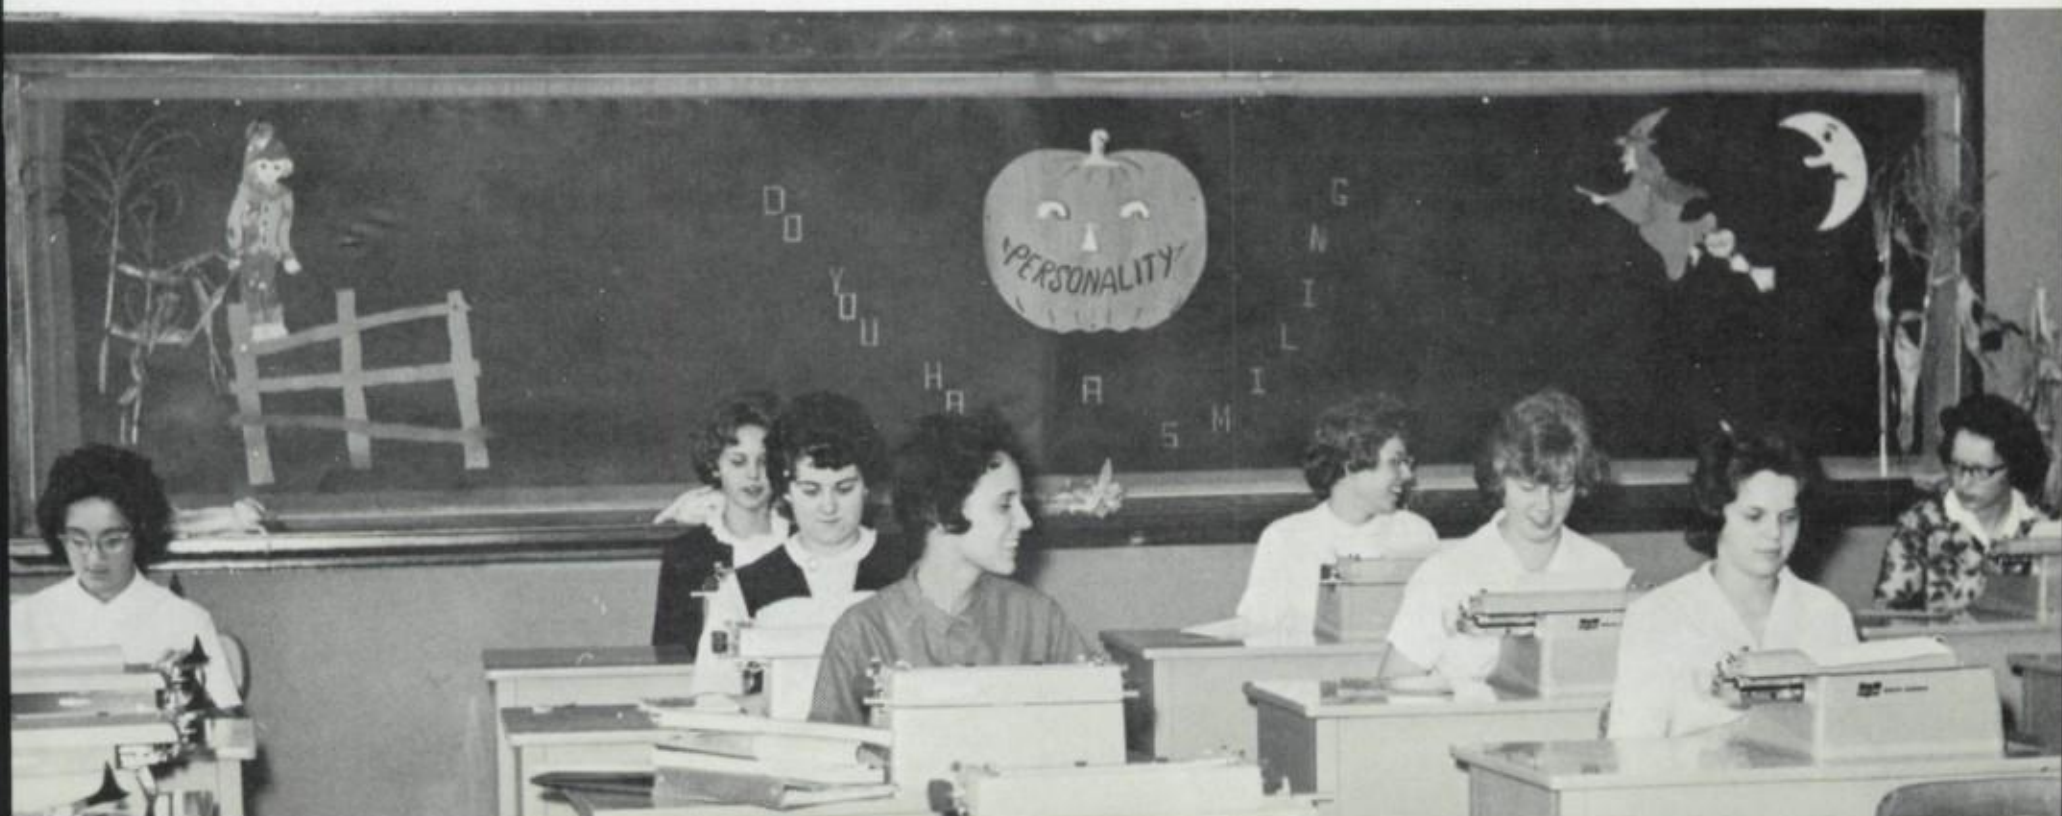

As stressed on the bulletin board in the background, personality is one of the most important things for a future secretary to keep in mind. Donna

Pinnell (front center), by the looks of her captivating smile, already has developed her personality to the necessary degree!

Typing, shorthand, bookkeeping, and mimeographing are all integral parts of office work as undertaken by secretaries and other office help. Typing, of course, can be of indispensable use in almost any walk of life—including high school homework. JT students prepare themselves for office jobs through clerical training and business education.

Gym Classes Encourage Physical Dexterity

Greg Bolz demonstrates a difficult position on the parallel bars. He looks as though he feels very much at home upside-down.

Mr. Klotwyk makes absolutely sure that there is no chance for an accident to happen. The boys looking on pay close attention and notice every detail because in a position like this, one slip could mean a few aches and pains.

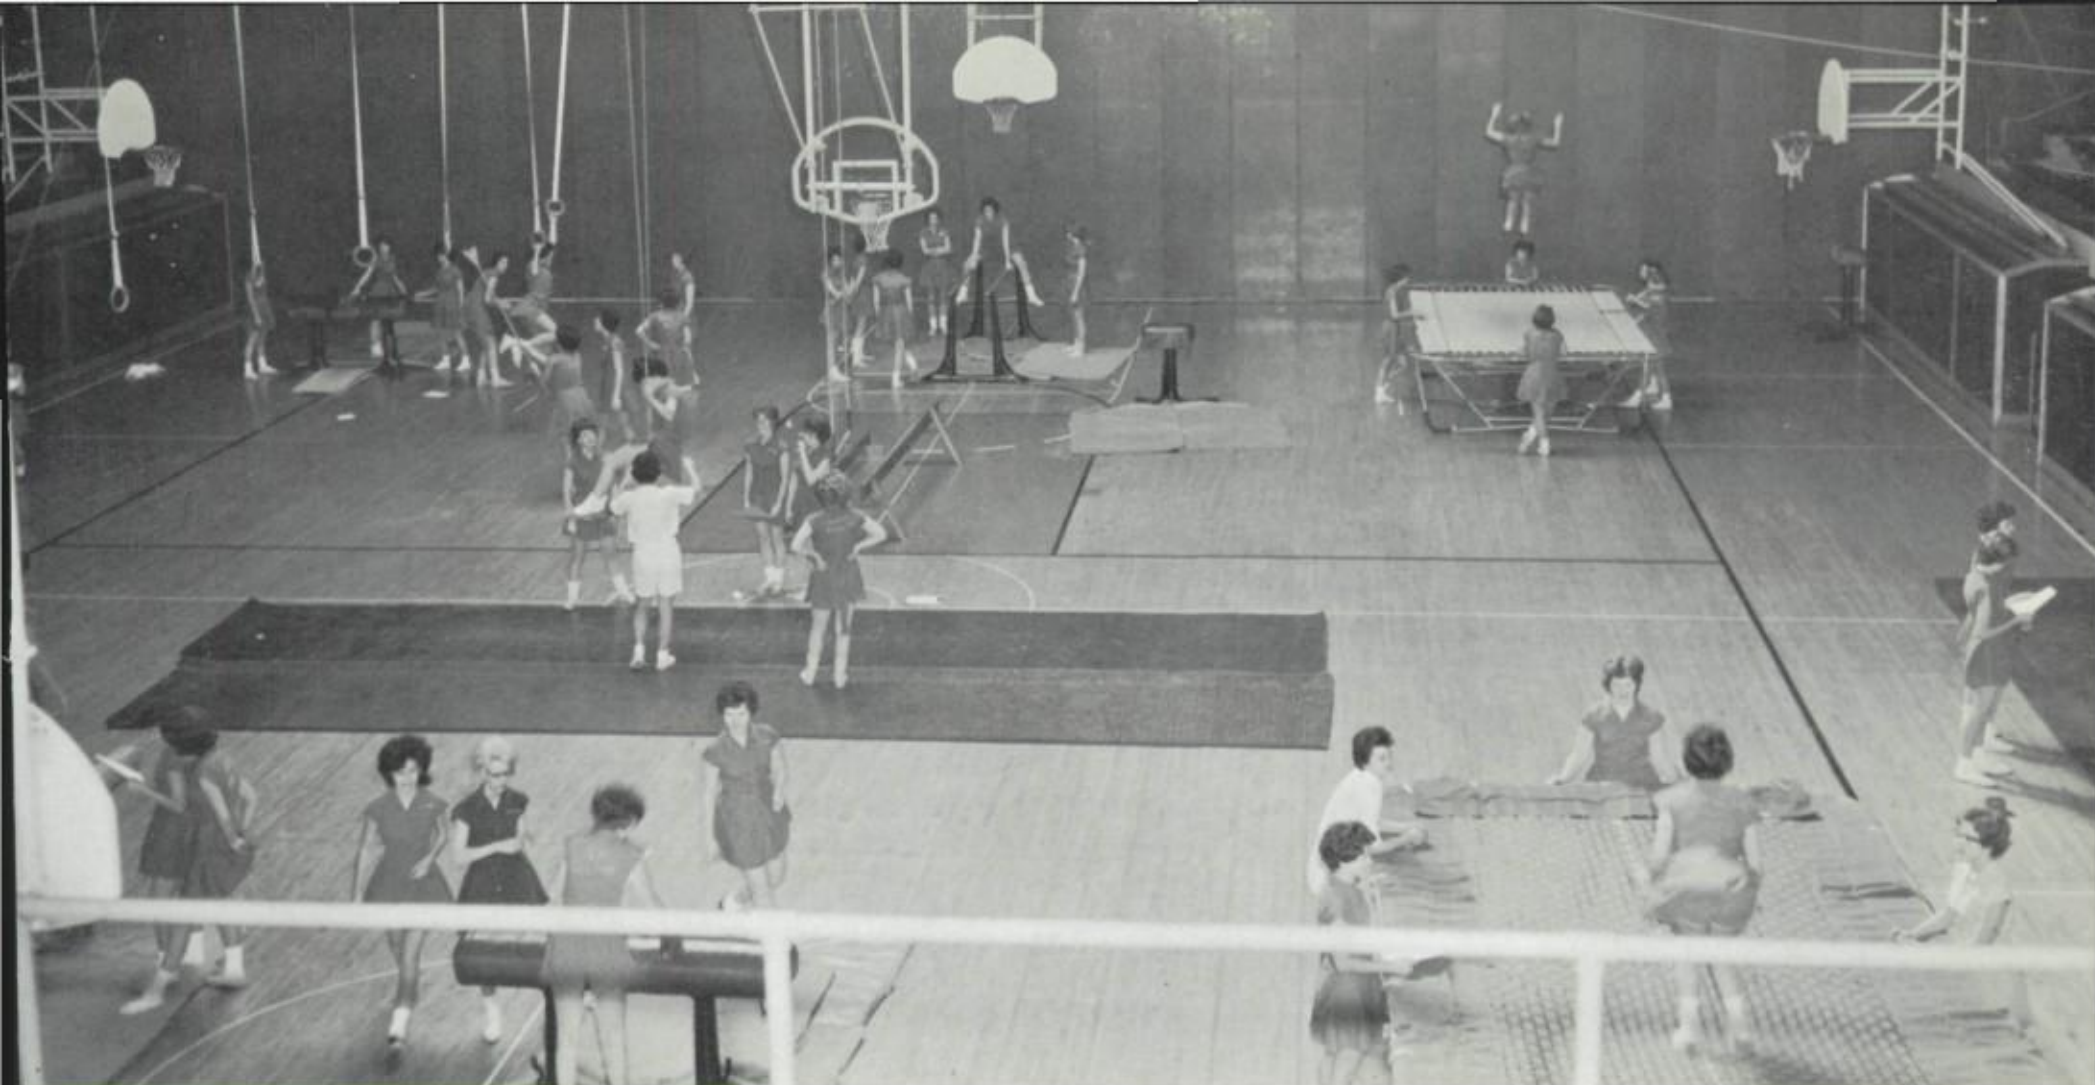

The sophomore boys build muscles lifting weights. For some the task is a difficult one, for others it is not. The end result serves as an ego-builder, although the feeling of having a forty pound weight overhead is not exactly a comfortable one.

This over-all shot of the boys' gym shows the rush to the shower room at the shower bell. However, activities are kept at a steady pace until the very last moment. The parallel bars are particularly popular as the boys learn to do several stunts on them as shown front center.

This over-all shot of the girls' gym shows the junior girls putting the apparatus to good, hard use. This equipment is also popular with sophomores and seniors. It can be a wonderful feeling to master the traveling rings (far left) or the trapeze (center) and to be able to "fly through the air with the greatest of ease." All equipment is either supervised by teachers or by capable student "spotters" to prevent any possible accidents.

Mrs. Thalrose teaches modern dance, folk dancing and square dancing. Modern dance stresses the use of poise and grace. Poems, folk lore and fairy tales are set to music and young choreographers take over. Folk and square dancing gives these girls a peak at other countries and other times.

Further encouraged by the current trend toward better physical fitness, the gym classes stress coordination, stamina, muscular tone, and all-around physical fitness. Other classes provide training in home nursing, first aid, dancing, and for the boys, weight lifting, bowling and several other activities. The gym classes give students a chance to "relax" during the academic day.

Bandaging is an important phase of first aid class as taught by Mrs. Hall. In this class senior girls learn what to do in case of an emergency when immediate care is necessary in order to save a limb, eye sight, or in many cases, a life. Everything is thoroughly gone over until there are no doubts. In emergencies, time is of the utmost importance. Pictured are: Mrs. Hall bandaging Joan Harrarin, and Sharon Menozi bandaging Donna Hourt.

Distributive Education, Office Occupations

MARY ELLEN SETINA
—Montgomery Ward—

Cooperative training, especially created for students who wish to gain on-the-job experience in the field of business or secretarial work is particularly popular with seniors with a lot of drive. Supervised training, supplemented by directed study, is the core of the program. Students are paid beginning hourly wages and work a minimum of fifteen hours a week.

In charge of Distributive Education is Mr. Hall. His students are placed in jobs where they "learn while they earn." They work as clerks, stock boys, and in related jobs associated with retailing.

Mr. Kahle is the supervisor of the Office Occupations program. His students are placed in offices as typists, stenographers, and file clerks. Here they come into contact with business personnel from all walks of life and gain invaluable experience.

There are many advantages to the cooperative training program for the student, employer and school.

Shutter-Bugs, Student Drivers Improve With Training

John Madden's main interest is photography. One might go so far as to say he lives in the dark...the dark room, that is. It gives him much satisfaction to develop a picture and print it. As the Indians used to say... "There are spirits in John's magic box."

Another shutter-bug is Bob Keck. He is shown here evaluating a roll of negatives which he is about to print. Bob states that candid shots, for the most part are most effective...and the most fun!

"You ought to be in pictures—so we'll put you there," say Ed Whiteman and John Madden to pretty Diana Ashby. Portrait photography is one of the talents "developed" in Mr. Letsler's photography classes. It is so nice to know things and people we would like to remember can be preserved forever on film.

Photography classes are thickly populated by JT camera enthusiasts much to the delight of Mr. Letsler, the teacher. Photography is really an art and is concerned with composition, contrasts and many, many other things including the finished product after the developing and printing processes. There is much competition between the student photographers which produces better and better shots. The student photographers are often given extra practice through helping the yearbook staff out of pinches!

Mr. Swalec reads off the order in which the student drivers will take their turn at the wheel. "Sue Pierson, Tom BeHeer, and, last, Jane Withers. All right, now we all remember where the starter is. Don't we?????"

Driver education (open to juniors and seniors) provides an excellent chance for beginning drivers to learn correctly from a qualified teacher. It offers both practical and on-the-road training. Even students who have already earned their rights on the road sign up for this course because insurance rates for drivers who have had a formal drivers education course are lower than for those who have not. In order to pass the course, one must pass the drivers' test and receive their driver's license which is the ultimate goal of most teenagers today.

Young Farmers Cultivate Knowledge

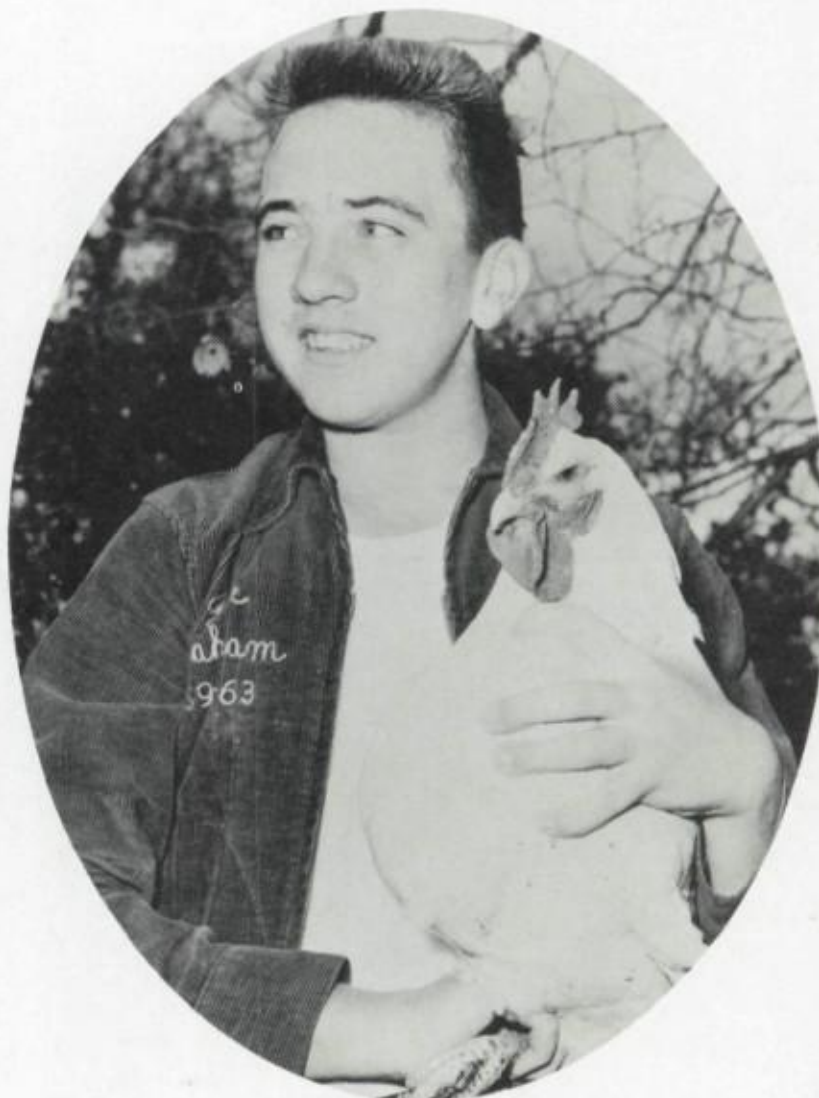

Jim Phelps exhibits some of the mechanisms he must engage before he is able to begin harrowing. The hydraulic cylinder on which he has his right hand attaches the disk implement to the tractor.

Besides the maintenance of machines, the farmer of today (and tomorrow) must still learn the responsibilities involved in live-stock care. And as evidenced by the appearance of his quarter and calf-roping horse, Joe Graham has utilized his experience in both school and stall to keep his animal a fit specimen for farm chores.

Ed Hollister is the proud owner of these two week old, six pound chester white pigs caught here enjoying their repast.

This white rock cockeral chicken, grown as a home project, merited Jim Phelps a second place in a poultry and grain show held at Yorkville.

Agricultural Training in School and on Farm

Learning the basic procedure of plowing on his own farm, Andy Tordai also attains practical results in readying the ground for the season ahead. Here, Andy is using the four bottom plow for peak efficiency.

Although Brent Lingle is still uncertain about which came first—the chicken or the egg—he doesn't let that biological enigma halt his progress in chicken/egg production. Both are essential in Brent's opinion . . . care of each has proved profitable in raising his thirty DeKalb hybrid chickens.

Joe Graham suspends a squealing "victim" by the hind legs as Ed Hollister vaccinates it to guard against erysipelas and cholera.

"Now grab this one, Joe." Ed Hollister points out the next "victim" to be vaccinated.

Affords Future Farmers Valuable Experience

The Vocational Agriculture program at JT prepares young men of today for the actual work situations which they will encounter on their own farms in later years to come. Contrary to popular belief, the farmer of today faces as many, if not more, problems and different situations as his father and grandfather before him. Agriculture is an ever expanding field with new ideas, theories and techniques to be tested and applied.

Joe Graham's experience with livestock has already "paid off" with this black angus steer that he has raised. The steer won an "A" rating at the Future Farmer's Association sectional livestock show held in Peotone and garnered Joe a second place in competition within its class.

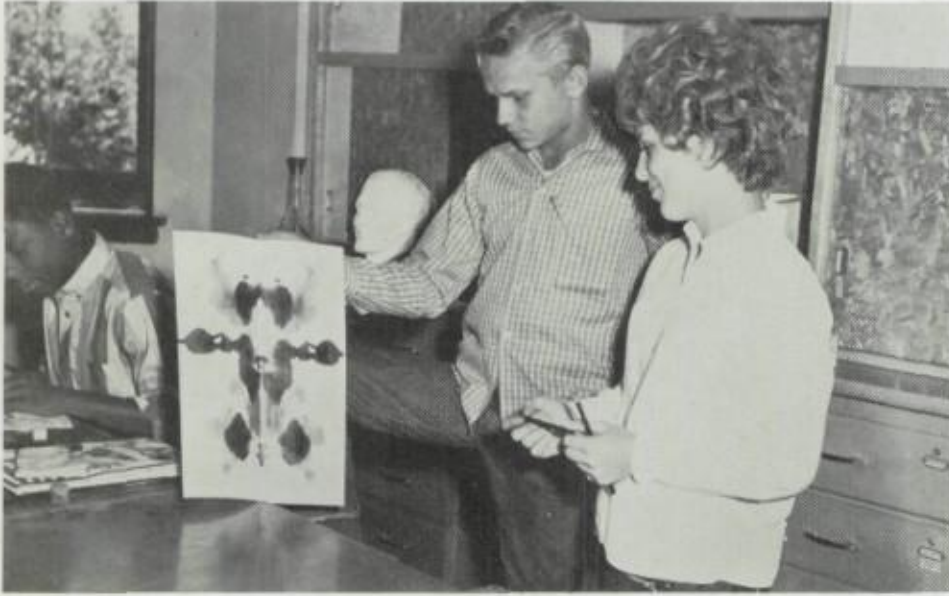

Allen Schleeter unloads shelled corn into a grain dryer in order to reduce the moisture content.

It's harvest time on Andy Tordai's farm, and all available man-hours are needed to bring the crop in before its first incurrence with Old Man Winter. Andy is maneuvering the two-row mounted cornpicker which he, along with other modern farmers, utilizes to economize in both time and labor.

Painters Practice Pencil Procedure for Perfection

An interesting modern design is created by dropping splashes of ink on a piece of paper, then folding it. The finished product is thought provoking to say the least.

Kathy Swan looks as if she is analyzing Greg Bolz's inner feelings. "It looks like two little people standing back to back," states Kathy, "But I'll be darned if I know what that means. Anyway, it deserves an 'A'."

Mr. Kurtz is always willing to give helpful pointers, and even a little criticism when necessary. Even more important, he gives praise where praise is due. Encouragement is important in any art. A trained eye is needed to justly appraise art work because no two people interpret a subject exactly the way. Mr. Kurtz points out to Lonnie Thurlby that a slight change here would be more effective.

Live models are often used when doing portraits or figure drawing. It is hard work getting the portrait to resemble the model, but it is just as hard to sit still, in one position, for any length of time without falling asleep. "Be patient. Just a couple of finishing touches and I'm done."

JT's art department is well equipped and excellently staffed by Miss Long, Mr. Parrish and Mr. Kurtz. Art courses are not only populated by those who wish to enter the field, but also by those who wish to learn more about color harmonizing, composition, direction and technique to enrich their daily lives. Art I and II consist of learning the fundamentals of the above mentioned. After these are mastered one may experiment with different media. Art courses not only include drawing, painting and sketching, but sculpturing, wood carving, commercial art, and jewelry making.

Mr. Kurtz explains the basics of working with tempera. After that, the students are left to their own imaginations, to develop their own personal touch.

ORGANIZATIONS

The organizations and clubs of Joliet Township are veritably as diverse and as many as any high school student body requires for its many interests. Here, there are academic organizations and social organizations, organizations with restricted membership and organizations having completely open membership . . . but all are designed to supplement the student's educational progress by showing him how to regulate his own activities by use of group government.

Sue Allen, Organizations Editor

Gaining Truer Perspective Through the Candid Eye

Rabid students of PHOTOGRAPHY take notes in PHOTOGRAPHY II. Class room discussion is an important part of normal procedure. Students start with the simplest type of equipment and soon realize the high quality of the school PHOTOGRAPHY equipment available for use by the students of PHOTOGRAPHY. By the time the year is out they are all avid PHOTOGRAPHERS. Most of the in-class activities consist of slides and educational filmstrips on the basic nature of PHOTOGRAPHY.

YEARBOOK PHOTOGRAPHER JOHN M. MADDEN assists ED WHITEMAN, J-Hi JOURNAL photographer in posing student model and J-Hi JOURNAL photographer, DIANA ASHBY for a portrait of professional quality.

Students of PHOTOGRAPHY, under the watchful eyes of Mr. Leatsler and Mr. Hansen, construct "pinhole" cameras, the earliest type of camera. After learning to use simple cameras in PHOTOGRAPHY, they move on to more technical types of PHOTOGRAPHY.

Student Council Officers Organization's Pacesetters

This year's Student Council has been working to make their organization vital to the school and to represent the student body in all situations. The Council has been striving to become more active in school and community affairs. It has headed projects such as the "Peanuts for Polio" Drive, the foreign exchange program which is represented by our foreign students Dave Rosenstein, and Mags Bagh, and a mid-term dance, at which Miss "J" was crowned. The project remembered by all students is Homecoming...the pep assembly, at which the Queen was named, the Queen's parade at the game, and the annual homecoming dance were all planned by the Student Council members. The faculty advisor of the Council is W. W. Johnson. At left are the Council officers, Linda Bolling, Secretary; Dave Keinlen, Vice President; Georgene Savich, Treasurer; Bill Wehrspann, Sergeant-at-Arms; and Mike Bonn, President. On the right are the senior class representatives, bottom to top; Ginnie Meier, Barb Huey, Barb Booth, Sylvia Lundin, Laurie Brown, Skip Pauson, and Connie Morgan. Not pictured is Suzi Hicks.

Freshman Chorus Stresses Vocal Training - -

The Freshman Chorus climaxed a busy and productive year by joining their sister organization, the Sophomore Chorus, in the production of "Songtime 63," an annual musical extravaganza produced by the Sophomore Chorus. Participation in the Christmas Talent Shows and caroling in the downtown areas during the Yule time were enjoyable and constructive contributions to the cause of good musical training.

But neither were social and extracurricular activities neglected. The Homecoming Queen's freshman attendant, Sue Wehrspann, was a candidate of the Freshman Chorus. Then there was the picnic at the end of the year which helped to relax and relieve the pressures of the strenuous musical season. The Freshman Chorus is under the direction of Mr. Robert Howell.

"With a Song in Our Hearts, We Come to

The Sophomore Chorus has been one of the most active musical groups at JT. "Songtime 63" is an annual spring concert in which the girls are attired in formals for the occasion. It was a tremendous success, and featured the Inner Choir singing selections from "West Side Story." Included on the year's agenda was the Veteran's Day Assembly, the annual Christmas Talent Show, and their "Femmes Fancy" dance to which the entire school is invited.

The picnic in the spring is always an appropriate ending to a full and eventful year for the Sophomore Chorus.

Participation in General Choir Work

As a feeder group to A Cappella Choir, the members of General Choir practice hard and look forward to the day when they can step up to the more advanced singing unit. General Choir participates in the Armistice Day assembly, Christmas Vespers, and the annual operetta. The choir also joins A Cappella in the J. T. H. S. Spring Band Concert. Socially, the choir is quite active with a picnic in the fall, a Christmas party, and the annual trip to the Indiana sand dunes. This year is one that will be remembered for a long time by many of the choir students.

Tri-Hi-Y Fosters Pride in Self, Community

Through an organization called Tri-Hi-Y girls learn to meet and solve problems which confront their community. By helping the less fortunate with Christmas and Easter food baskets, they practice good Citizenship. The Tri-Hi-Y is made up of twelve individual clubs. Tri-Hi-Y's "World of Fun" is enthusiastically received by all who attend; a variety of entertainment is provided for the entire evening. The finale of this event is a dance where the King and Queen for the "World of Fun" are announced. Another social event which all the girls look forward to is the annual Spring Dance which gives the girls a chance to select the escort of their choice! A Tri-Hi-Y member is provided with many fond memories that give her pride in her community, her club, and herself.

The National Honor Society, since its formation in 1921, has served to recognize the achievements of top students in high schools throughout the nation. Essentially, this is an honorary society. The local group, however, performs services to the school and the student body through such projects as tutoring, acting as guides for major events, and book exchange management. The sponsors, caught at one of their more relaxed moments are Mr. and Mrs. Longman.

National Honor Society officers are elected each semester. Officers for the second semester are in the second row. Rich Altenhoff, vice-president; Bob Smith, president; Carol Erkmann, secretary; officers of the first semester were Joan Hynd, secretary; and Paul Weiss, president.

'Club' of Three Provides Yearbook Staff With Bulk of Pictures

Through photographic work for the J of '63 Gene Sebben has encountered practically every situation that's likely to confront him in his forthcoming career in photography. By either taking formal, scheduled-in-advance portraits, or, more typically, informal, spur-of-the-moment shots, Gene has proved his photographic ability by reproducing flawless prints in each case. At the left, Gene examines a photo he has just finished developing, while, at the right, he poses for picture taken by—you guessed it!—himself.

John Madden, another photographer reliable for the yearbook staff, has utilized his photo work for the annual not only as an invaluable contribution to the excellence therein, but also as an opportunity to increase his picture-taking experience. Here, John completes the process of picture development by taking the finished products off the dryer.

Timm Urbanik (right) has mastered the techniques of photography—in both the facets of picture taking and picture developing—while producing quality photos for the J of '63. This experience, Timm believes, has elevated him from the dubious position of "shutter bug" to that of a "proficient professional." Below, Timm focuses his 4" X 5" view camera for another portrait.

Booster Club Rallies School Spirit, Exploits Talent

As officers of the Booster Club, Dave Kienlen, Laurie Brown, Pat Bussy, and Ken Angus are responsible for publicizing the activities of the school, calling attention to outstanding work by students and giving credit to accomplishments above and beyond the call of routine student activity.

"23 skiddo!" The talent presented by the Booster Club is always of the best quality, and the Kelly Adorables are no exception. The dancers' routine is a Charleston number and they dressed in costumes depicting the "Roaring 20's." The dancers are Janice Lamb, Maurine Ballius, Sue Grimpe, Linda Currie, Kathy Hoye, and Gloria Paone.

172 Helping to publicize an orchestra concert are Linda Cramer, and Ross MacDonald who are featured in a musical portion of a typical Boosters' program.

"Sign up for the bus now!" As sponsors of the Booster Club, Mr. Ken Parker and Mr. Don Kienlen are counting the money collected from loyal students who have signed up to go on a bus to an out-of-town athletic event. Mr. Kienlen and Mr. Parker also act as "judges" for talent presented at the Booster meetings.

"And then this traveling salesman said..." Robin Heilmann enjoys entertaining his fellow students at the Thursday morning Booster meeting. Even though the meeting takes place early, it is not too early to comprehend Robin's jokes. He always gets that punch line across.

Thespians' Dramatic Abilities Develop in NTS

Practical Training Stressed in Office Occupations

On the blackboard is a seasonal reminder of the smiling personality which every secretary must possess. As members of Office Occupation Association, Martha Carter, Mary Brandalino, Jeri Allen, Gigi Budzinski, and Lynn Bojeski, (left to right) are responsible for the decoration of the chalkboard. Here they reflect a smiling personality that is essential for every qualified secretary. Co-Op enables future businesswomen to take their place in the business world.

Making prospective secretaries familiar with office routine is the main objective of the organization. Here, students examine the latest in office equipment at the Caterpillar Tractor Company... the same equipment which they will be required to use in the near future.

Food Producers of the Future

The Future Farmers is an organization of boys studying Vocational Agriculture. They have regular meetings the first and third Mondays of each month. In addition to this, many Saturdays are spent working for the organization. Organization members are: FRONT ROW, (l to r): Greg Hutson, Ron Gunchin, Jerome Fris, Bill White, Bob Neese, Vance Roofener, Jim Phelps, George Woznik. MIDDLE ROW: Joe Graham, Andy Bustin, Jay Koren, Ed Hollister, Bill Taylor, Chuck Gura, Paul Kapellas, Robert Smith. TOP ROW: Mr. Ronald Deininger, Agriculture Instructor, Eddie Fear, Vic Gigliette, Veryl Lichtenwalter, Tim Geistler, Junior College Work Scholarship Student, Max H. Future Homemakers Prime for Ultimate Role

The Future Homemakers of America membership is exposed to a variety of programming throughout the school year. Holding to the theory that embryonic homemakers should receive a smattering of liberal arts to insure proper and extensive preparation for a richer and more meaningful life, guest speakers are occasionally invited to share their experiences. At this meeting the FHA is being addressed by three foreign exchange students, Dave Rosettenstein from South Africa, Meg Bagh of West Germany, and Larry Mason, JT's exchange student to Switzerland.

Oral Expression Ability An Invaluable Asset

The National Forensic League is a national honorary speech organization for high school students; J.T.H.S. has had a chapter since 1959. Students are admitted to membership by having participated in inter-school speech and debate activities and by having spoken before adult audiences in the school and community. As students accumulate speech experience, they are awarded degrees of advanced standing which may qualify the speakers for college scholarships. The League sponsors a speech and debate tournament each year at the state level and a national tournament each summer.

Debate at JT was reactivated during the school year, 1957-58, after a long interval of inactivity. Since that time it has grown from an activity involving about six students to one involving thirty. Here Karen Lenz is giving a speech which must be eight minutes long. The card with the number "4" on it, indicates the time remaining before the conclusion of the speech. Members are sponsored by Mr. Paul Johnson, and Mr. Ron Jensen.

Due to the increased interest being shown in Debate, two class sessions per day are devoted to it. Shown here in practice is Carol Larson. Her speech must meet the standards set down by the Illinois High School Debate Association.

"J" Editors Preserve Present for Future

To record for posterity the events and activities of the 1962-63 school year was the sincere intention of the ten editors, portrayed on this and the following two pages, of the "J of '63." And the culmination of their efforts is truly evidenced in this yearbook, for it has accrued from their effective planning and construction. The "J of '63" is wholly a student project guided by student aims, aims which can only be imagined when one realizes the importance in preservation of the present for guidance in the future.

"Ah, to escape the drudgery of coaxing editors to meet deadlines, of writing headlines, checking copy, proof-reading pages..." Alan Barney, Editor-in-Chief of the "J of '63," apparently reasons while peering through a window into the "outside" world of seemingly more ordered existence. But, of course, such whimsical musings of the editors don't indicate perpetual dislike for his work... only that he should refrain from it occasionally to gaze hopefully toward its end. "Life is basically tragic!"

The last hurrah! "Next year I've just got to get organized." As Organizations Editor, Sue Allen has cajoled, flattered, weedled, inveigled, beguiled, blandished, coaxed, lured, attracted, ensnared, entangled, persuaded, decoyed, induced, convinced, and prevailed upon uncounted numbers of people to get pictures of every possible club and organization at JT. Is it any wonder she looks fit for Geritol? The results of the struggle are reflected in her countenance. Just being around at the finish was a moral victory. Rahl

Yearbook Editors Record for School's Progeny

"Hit that ball! Swing that racket! Make that spare! Hit that line! Take that hikel! Sink that basket"—exhibiting the tools of the trade, Lois Litherland, girls' sports editor, makes the big pitch in behalf of physical fitness. Looking fresh from Vogue, who'd think Lois just bounced in from a Kennedy-type 50 mile hike. Talk about healthy!

Being an underclassman can be a traumatic experience. Everybody seems to outrank you. Underclassmen are continually subordinated and ground into submission. Even yearbook editors seem dictatorial. Here Dan McCarthy, the underclassmen editor, extracts tribute from his subjects.

Some people will go to any lengths to carry out an assignment—and when Cheryl Floyd was told to cover the faculty "scene" she went right to the source of the biggest "productions" and "cast" her lot with the big time "performers." She won the "critics" acclaim as faculty editor but lost the "play" when she drew to an inside straight.

Episodes and Incidents of JT '63

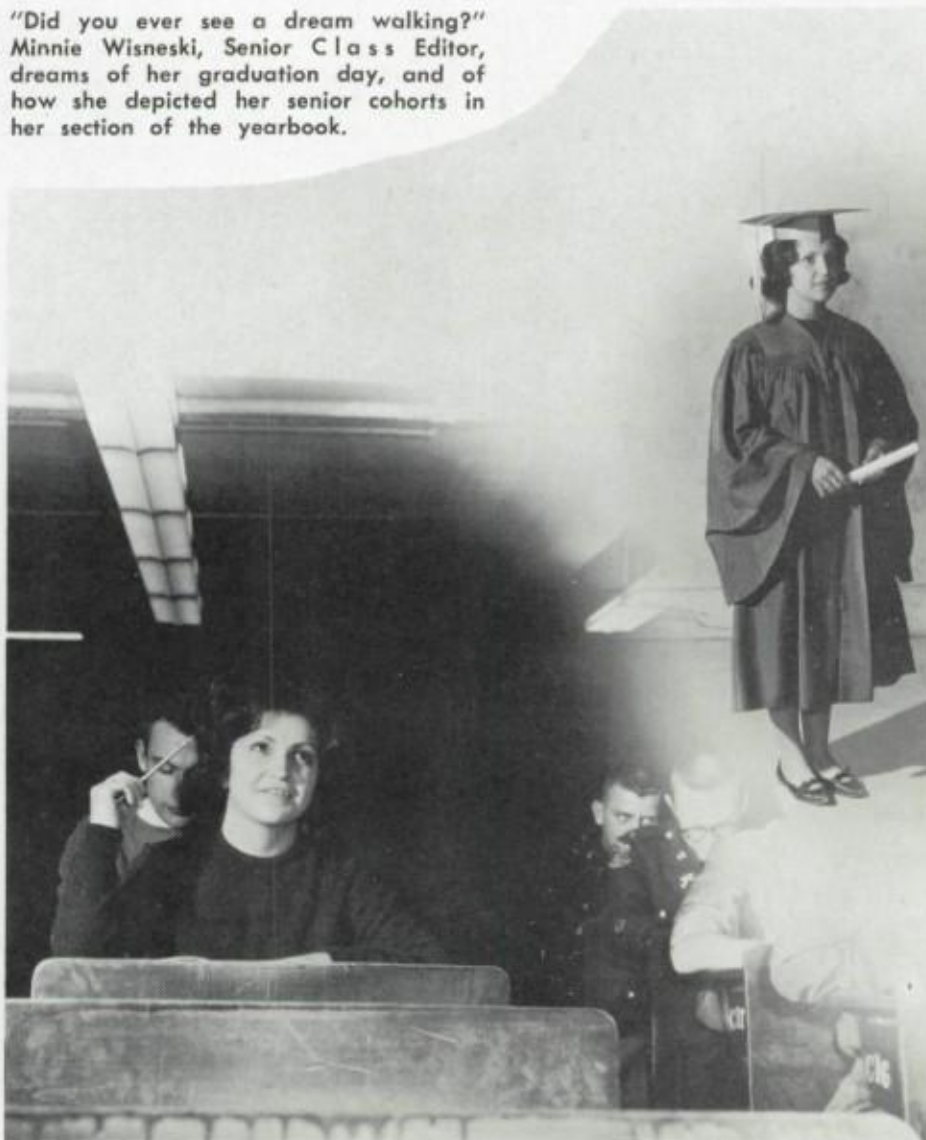

Publicity campaign, record of sales and receipts, bookkeeping, and distribution of annuals are the main pursuits of Mary Brandalino as Business Manager.

As Social Activities Editor, Barb King's main objective is to make any social activity a memorable one. Barb accomplished this by attending each social event herself and then later recording it in the annual.

Depicting only one event of boys' sports, Steve Bannister, Boys' Sports Editor, attempts to throw a football to a companion of the Steelman. This Steelman presents JT's championship athletics and their coach.

"Did you ever see a dream walking?" Minnie Wisneski, Senior Class Editor, dreams of her graduation day, and of how she depicted her senior cohorts in her section of the yearbook.

"Where's our Girl Friday?" Calls like this were meant for Judy Perrine, one of the quartet of main feature writers and editorial editors. Judy's job called for many ideas to emerge from her head.

Although J-Hi-Journal editor-in-chief Karen Lind wasn't quite forced to work at the linotype, she did spend much time at the print shop. Karen's duties as editor-in-chief included planning the stories, writing headlines and supervising the final processes. Pictured with Karen is print shop advisor Mr. Norman Erckmann, who is typically explaining a point about printing to her.

Journal Staff Experiments

Designed primarily to serve as a laboratory project for students studying journalism and printing, the J-Hi Journal is published jointly by the journalism department and the school's printing shop. Described as a bi-weekly, this tabloid contains news stories, editorials, feature and sports coverage geared to the limited extent of the mechanical production. An additional attraction is the inclusion of a national student pictorial magazine, "Scholastic Roto" in each issue. The newspaper is not intended to serve as a "voice of JT" and present timely news, view, and pictorial display, but is a teaching advice whereby reporters, writers, advertising salesmen, photographers, and printers are provided a medium by which they may receive practical training in all phases of publications work. This year the "J-Hi Journal" is under the direction of Editor-in Chief Karen Lind. Her staff consists of Judy Perrine, feature writer; Peri Potter, George Day, Rosemarie Astorio, and Judy Perrine, interesting features, humor, and news writers; Sue Tarlini, News Editor; Carol Mirinic, Business Manager; Gary Johnson, Howell Lind, and George Day, Sports Editors; and Judy Watolha, Circulation Editor.

"Hal Hal" This is the funniest feature you've written. Sounds of laughter and words like that were heard in the Journal office. Composing the feature writer staff are from left to right: Peri Potter, George Day, Rosemarie Astorino and Judy Perrine. Peri's speciality was fashions, humor and information articles. George Day dealt mainly with humor of all types. Rosemarie Astorino interviewed spotlight personalities and contributed information-type feature. Judy's speciality was entertaining features, humor, and feature-news. Judy and Peri planned the stories for each issue.

"Papers, papers. Did you remember to buy your subscription?" Judy Wah-tola, circulation manager uttered these sentences in her job. Judy not only circulated Journals and exchanged them but also kept files of stories and information the editors had gathered.

"Yes sir. How many inches do you want? I'll pick up the mat and copy." Conversations such as this became engraved in Business Manager Carol Mirenic's head as she made her daily phone calls. After Carol got the ads, then came the planning and laying-out for the various pages.

"Yea team. Who scored that point? I'll interview the coaches." Sports writers uttered those words many times in the process of gathering all the available sports news. From left to right are, Gary Johnson, Howell Lind, and George Day.

"News, news! Does anyone have any news?" Sue Tarlini, news editor asked this question daily in her search for student news in the Journal. Sue had to know the coming events, cover them, and then write the stories.

Publication 'Stepchildren' Petition for 'Family' Acceptance

These is them that done it. Done what? They edited and published the Blue and Gold, J.T.'s literary magazine. A portion of the material included in the magazine was written by members of the staff. However, the publication is a convenient outlet for literary aspirants and permits the publication of their works. The work is evaluated and edited for possible publication. Scattered over the floor, typical of an editorial session, the staff is pictured from left to right: Jeannette Hicks, Skip Pauson, Shirley Leuthner, Linda Momsen, Carol Leuthner, Robin Heilman, June Swango, and Karen Lenz.

Shirley Leuthner, chief editor of the "Blue and Gold" checks her file for possible magazine material.

With five journalism department projects going all at once like a five ring circus, a director of school publications has to take a philosophical attitude to his work to live with it. For instance, in a life filled with constant "deadlines" and confronted with the student "human elements," he must reason that the world is moving so fast these days that the man who says it can't be done is generally interrupted by someone doing it. And somehow or other it all gets done. It gives a man pause.

Gathered around the WJOL microphone for the airing of an edition of the "Crew Cut Capers" weekly radio show are Joyce Crowther and Janet Green, special guests, Nancy Floyd, one of the "team," Kathy Shaw and Cindy Keck, program coordinators.

Preparation for a weekly 90 minute radio program aired regularly from WJOL, Joliet, is a tedious and time consuming chore. Arranging for guests, editing high school news, selecting recorded music, and preparing telephone interviews comprise weekly routine duty for the "Crew Cut Capers" coordinators, Cindy Keck and Kathy Shaw.

JT News Bureau Augments School Promotion Facilities

The JT News Bureau is in its third active year. It is part of the publication program under the direction of George Denison. Reporters gather news, write stories, take pictures and send releases to local newspapers in the town. The purpose of the news bureau is to obtain publicity for the school through means of school features in the local town newspapers.

Margene Whitler, featurer reporter of the JT News Bureau, reported, typed, and delivered material daily to the downtown papers.

Sue Rapson made daily treks "down" to the Herla News and Spectator with News Bureau copy she has helped gather. Sue is news reporter for the JT News Bureau.

The JT News Bureau staff's job consists of reporting, writing, and delivering news to the downtown papers and the radio station. Pictured from left to right are the members of this staff: Sue Rapson, news reporter; Karen Lind, editor-in-chief; Sally Standfield, typist; and Margene Whitler, feature reporter. This is the news bureau's third year of operation.

Find more news! Schedule more pictures! Send more material down! These could be the cries of the JT News Bureau editor-in-chief Karen Lind. This year the news bureau program was expanded by sending more articles to a larger surrounding area.

"Results--Not Alibis"

From a humble beginning with 12 members who had second-hand instruments and used nail kegs for chairs, in 1912, the Joliet Township High School Band rose to meteoric heights and international prominence during its half century of existence.

In reviewing the band's history, it is noted that the musicians first rehearsed in the manual training room at the school. It was not until several years later that the band was allotted its own space for rehearsal.

Perseverance proved to be the key to success and the band was given permanent possession of the national award trophy after winning the championship three years in succession in 1926, 1927, and in 1928. In the national band contests in 1931 and 1933, the band again brought home the national honors. It was in 1933 that Division I Superior Award was used as a rating for the first time. With the abandonment of the national contest in 1933, the band achieved the Division I Superior rating in the regional contests in 1935, 1938, and 1940.

During the war years, the regional contests were abandoned and now only the state final contests continue to be held. And at each of the state contests, the Joliet Band has come away with a Division I Superior rating every year, including 1962.

"Winner and Still Champion"

During World War I, a band tradition was established and still followed faithfully. The band was on hand each time Will County youths departed for service during World War I; and, during World War II, the same procedure was followed, and, even now, each group of Will County departees is serenaded by the bandsmen. This has proved to be one of the band's major achievements.

The success of the band is said to be due to such factors as training begun in grade school and continued through grade eight in the Joliet Public Grade School Bands; the outstanding private teachers with whom the members study; a budget made available by the band's own yearly concerts and activities; the active interest by members of the community and the band alumni; by active band mothers and band parents organizations; by the generous support of the board of education and the administration of the school; and, by an intense esprit de corps among the members who value fifty years of tradition.

Another distinction held by the band is that it has played for every president except Harry S. Truman and John F. Kennedy since President Wilson. The band has also taken part in many inaugural parades.

Marking Fifty Golden Years

It was the late A. R. McAllister who founded the band and directed the musicians for 32 years until his death in September, 1944, leading the able bandsmen to unprecedented fame. McAllister, too, was the founder and president of the National School Band Association. Because of his tremendous influence on the school band movements he is remembered by music educators throughout the country as the "Band Pioneer." It was under his able baton that the JT Band won the national championship three years in succession — the golden years of 1926, 1927, and 1928. And for this heretofore unheard of feat, the band was given permanent possession of the national championship trophy.

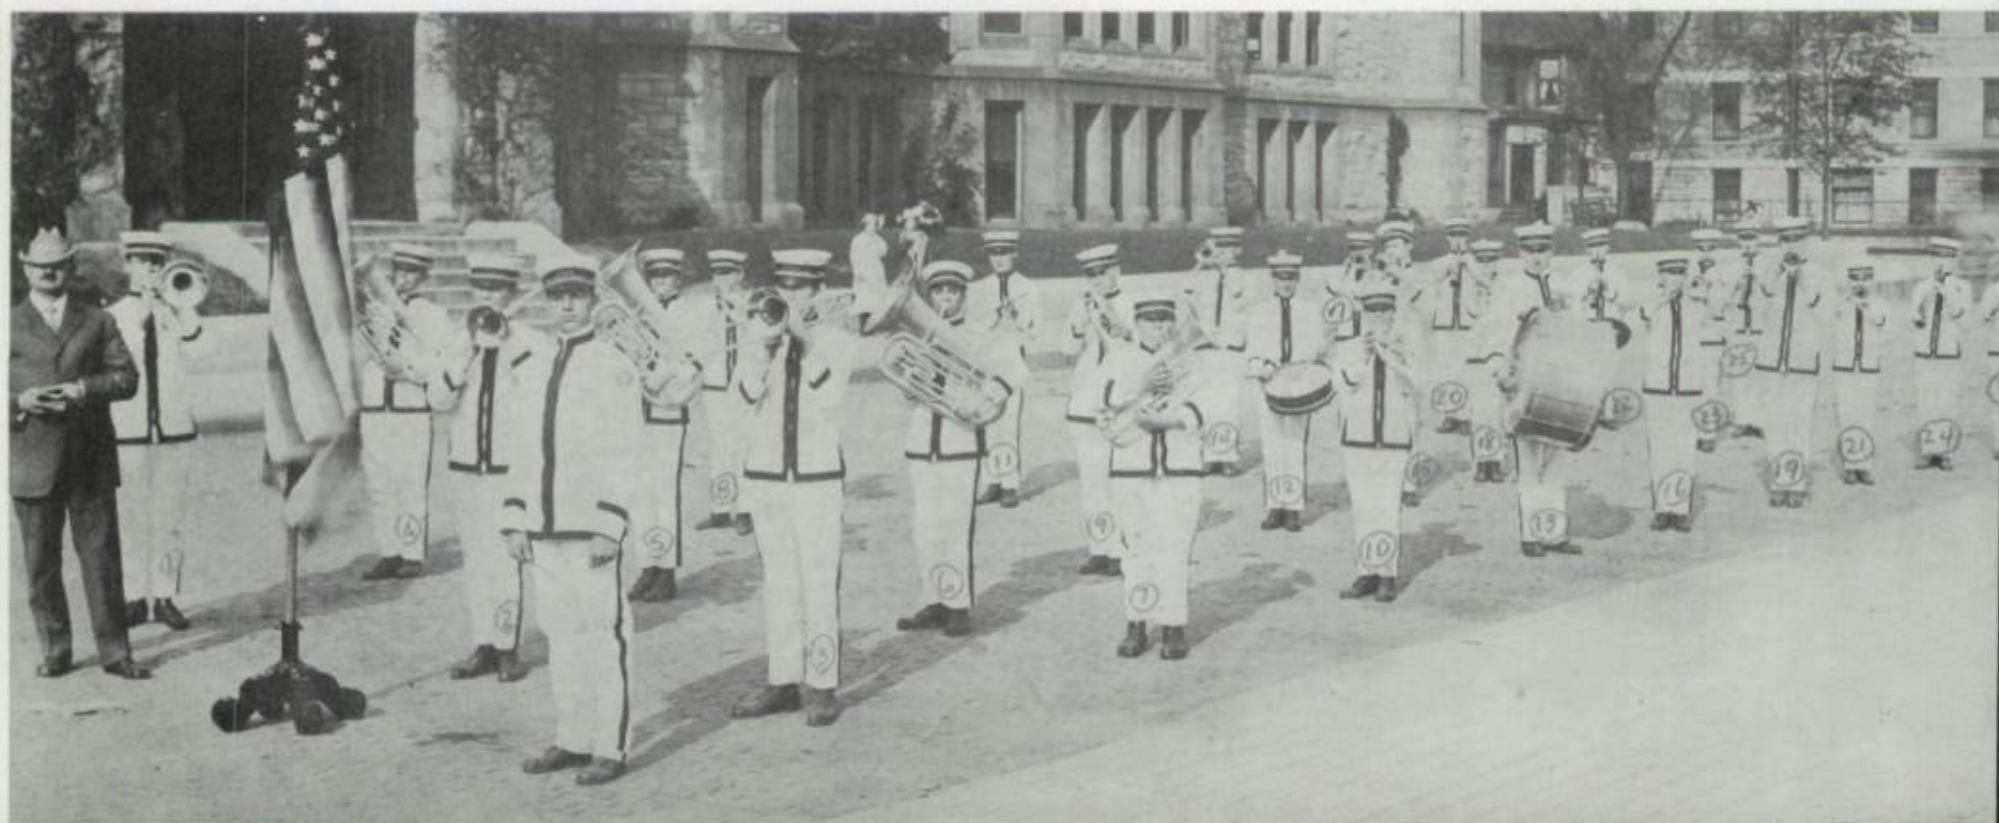

Mr. A. R. McAllister
Founder and Conductor of the JT Band for 32 years.

On Memorial Day in May of 1945, following the death of Mr. McAllister the previous September, the band inaugurated the custom of marching to Elmhurst cemetery where he is buried to pay homage. The custom has become an annual parade in which the band marches to muffled drum from the school to the cemetery to decorate the grave of the band's founder. Here is pictorially recorded the ceremony.

of Glorious Band Music

In July, 1945, Mr. Bruce Houseknecht assumed the direction of the musical group. The following year he was named head of the music department at JT, a post he still holds. He now is in his 19th term as conductor of the band. And always its high standards of excellence have been upheld and more honors brought to the school. Under his leadership, the band has won a reputation for performing entire symphonic repertoire and is noted for its sight reading ability. Mr. Houseknecht is a member of the American Bandmaster's and Director's Association and is concertmaster of the Joliet Little Symphony. He is the 1962-63 president of the Illinois Music Educators' Association. Further evidence of an illustrious career is his "Mac" Award, presented to outstanding bandmasters in honor of A. R. McAllister.

MARCHING STEELMEN

The color and pagentry of the band on parade never fails to quicken the pulse of the spectator along the line of march.

Pride of the Parade

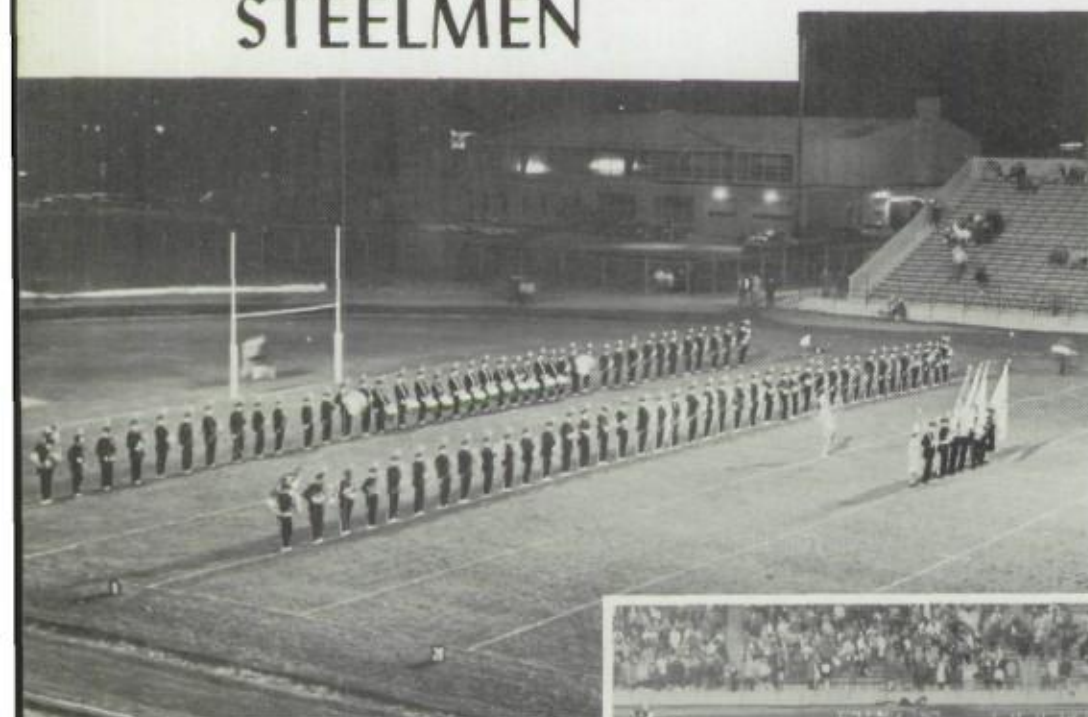

Although parades in Joliet are not uncommon, an announced parade never fails to attract a crowd. No matter what the occasion or the time, big parade or little parade, the chances are good that the musical unit heading the line of march will be Joliet Township's National Championship Band. The citizens of the community have come to expect flawless performance from this smartly dressed and spirited stepping organization and they are never disappointed.

Ivy day ceremonies are complemented by the presence of the band which provides the music that sets the mood for the solemn atmosphere of the occasion.

Pride and joy is the inevitable emotional reaction of the Joliet citizen as he watches the Blue and Gold swing down the street on parade, for he can say to himself, "This is my band."

MARCHING STEELMEN

As the band lines up at the far end of the field, the stadium crowd holds their seats during halftime to be entertained by the best crowd pleasing band in the nation. At right, the band holds formation momentarily before going into an intricate marching maneuver.

The Showmanship Band

One of the most thrilling experiences of the patrons who flock to Memorial Stadium for Steelmen football is to watch Steelmen entertainment in the form of halftime musical and marching productions as performed by the band.

With the color guard and sponsors in the foreground, the band boys salaam to one knee as they accept the plaudits of their public.

Practicality dictated the division of the varsity unit into the Blue, above, and the Gold, below, bands. It was back during the early years of World War II, in 1943, that the band was first divided. Down through the years the boys have abetted their own cause by trying to outplay each other in a spirit of wholesome competition. The boys take fierce pride in their band, and they assume even more loyalty to their division, whether it be the Blue or Gold band. So, each spring, at the May meeting of the Band Parents' Association, each band takes the stage and they battle it out. The winning band is awarded a trophy which gets a place of honor in the band's bulging trophy case.

The Joilet Township High School National Championship Band Sponsors and Color Guard represent with true dignity the entire membership, both past and present, and typify the pride and loyalty so characteristic of each musician in this fine and noble organization.

Leading Cheers for Athletic Champs

Kathy Allen

"The Joliet Steelmen say 'Hello'." With this invitation the Sophomore cheerleaders set the stage for action by welcoming the visiting school delegation and team with a cheer. This gesture is traditional and gives the visiting cheerleaders a chance to get acquainted and oriented to our school and football stadium. The cheerleaders are: Kathy Allen, Linda Anderson, Lynette Hertz, Donna Grohne, and Louise Wilson.

Now, how about a big cheer for the cheerleaders, who cheer for everybody except themselves.

Players and coaches were cheered during games. In addition, they received recognition through the press by means of reports of their contests.

Too often, however, these bouncing, leaping and some saulting girls who lead the cheers and seldom slow down victory or defeat, seldom receive full credit for their effort.

Leading cheers isn't easy; it's rugged work. Cheerleaders practice long and hard, like the athletes. And the standards for becoming a cheerleader are high.

During the spring the girls are chosen for the Varsity squad. The criteria of selection includes cheering ability, enthusiasm, audience contact, and neatness.

Miss Carolyn Rhode is the new cheerleader sponsor. She offers advice to the girls and serves as a consultant to the girls when problems arise. In addition to being "cheerleading coach," Miss Rhode is also a physical education teacher.

This year the squads operated on a merit system. Demerits are given for gum chewing, untidy uniform, improper conduct, and unexcused absence. Ten demerits disqualifies a cheerleader for her award and fifteen results in dismissal from the squad.

This year the cheerleaders generated the pep and fanaticism for several championship teams. They have successfully carried out their main objective: igniting enthusiasm and promoting school spirit. The cheerleaders are; (l to r) Ann Grinton, Barb Huey, Janice Tonelli, Joyce Heinlen, and Linda Bolling.

The girls crumple for a breather after a grueling hour of practicing cheers. Pert smiles reflect their happy feelings about the victorious athletic teams. The cheerleaders are (seated) Janice Tonelli, Linda Bolling. Standing are Joyce Heinlen, Annie Grinton, and Barb Huey.

Poised in the air—spirits soar. JT's cheerleaders are endowed with the gift of keeping the essence of team spirit and school loyalty alive at all times. Cheerleaders represent the hope and elation of the entire student body as

"Go! Fight! Win!" These Sophomore cheerleaders have proved that their pep and steam helped lead their teams to a victorious season. (l to r) Louise Wilson, Donna Grohne, Lynette Hertz, Linda Anderson, Kathy Allen.

Showing eagerness and enthusiasm for their work, the Varsity and Soph. cheerleader squads gather around their "coach" for a session of technique improving tips and procedure analysis. Sylvia Lundin expresses the personal ebullience always present (although probably in less degree!) at any JT social event. And truly, excitement runs rampant when announcements of contest winners are included in a social program . . . as was the case when Sylvia was crowned "Miss J of 1963" by Charlene (Lundberg) Frojd, Miss Photoflash, Miss N. P. P. A., and Miss United States of 1960, at the "Scholarship Swing."

As the "J of '63" helps move Joliet Township High School forward into a new era of progressive Journalism, color photography is taking its rightful place as an integral part of a publication designed to uphold the traditional excellence of JT. Where better to utilize a four-color process than in the glorification of five lovely young ladies — girls who traditionally epitomize the female beauty of the modern high school campus — the Homecoming queen and her court? In a setting which symbolizes the close unity of

Colorful Homecoming Activities Accrue

The homecoming parade wouldn't be complete without the organizers who extend sufficient effort in helping to make Homecoming the success that it was. They are Mike Bonn, Paul Mott, Skip Pauson, and Don Leonard. In dark glasses is Geno Majerszky.

Representing Bloom High School is Mike Courage who continuously repeats the commandment "Thou shall not kill," but Russ Ghilain persists in proving that JT will be victorious.

JT coaches Frank Miller, Mel May, Howie Scheidt, and Ray Klootwyk await the beginning of the parade.

From 'Architect's' Blueprint

Stuffing napkins is seemingly an endless job, and yet, many clubs and organizations undertake the project. Mary Jane Knowles and Tom Anderson help get the A'Cappella Choir float constructed in time for judging and the parade.

The Orchestra can be proud of their float which captured first place honors among Homecoming float entries. The parade has become an integral part of the program of events for the last few years.

The JT Players "The Curious Savage"

Intrigued by the artistry of Mrs. Paddy (Marie Baitenger) as she works at her easel are some of her inmate friends who reside with her at the mental institution which houses "The Curious Savage." They are Judy Freiberg, Helen Fricke, Ron Thelo, and Tom Bojeski.

Physical preparation for appearance on stage requires lengthy make-up sessions. Here in progress is a transformation of a high school sophomore girl to the make-believe role of an actress. Helen Fricke assists Kathy Rogers with her makeup chores.

If one could read Barb Craig's mind, he would find she's thinking about poor David Boettcher and how he'll never quite look the same. Fern Mann seemingly enjoys transforming David into a stage personality for "The Curious Savage."

Before the curtain goes up on any production, many hours of rehearsal are spent to perfect roles in preparation for the "first night." Putting the finishing touches on "The Curious Savage" prior to opening are Linda Jorgenson, Kathy Rogers, Judy Freiberg, and Marie Baitenger.

Present With Pride: "Savage"

Back stage personnel Bill Ghenda, Mike Skinner, Scott Stahl, Jim Anderson, and Jeff Koerber, assist the players in transporting their audience to the world of dreams and fantasy.

A loveable Savage with blue hair . . . a greedy Congressman and his "milktoast" brother . . . a persnickity person who despises pins, needles, rhubarb, and gallstones . . . a mother with a rag doll . . .

These are the strange but hilarious characters that made up this year's all-school play production, "The Curious Savage."

"The Curious Savage," a comedy by John Patrick, is a satire on people and perennial success. It all begins when Mrs. Savage (Judy Freiberg) inherits her husband's fortune and changes it into bonds which are buried! This infuriates her son, Titus, (Thomas Bojeski) who is a politician. So she is taken to an asylum.

In the asylum she encounters many zany characters and their funny quirks which keeps the audience in stitches. But there is a certain poignancy that gives it a human glow and makes it a terrific play.

Bob Johnston plays Hannibal and Kathy Rogers a young girl, Helen Fricke, Ronald Thelo, Thomas Bojeski, David Boettcher, Nancy Houseknecht, and Marie Baittegger, all had stellar roles. The play was directed by Mr. Mallary. Assisting him was the student director, Nancy Bailles.

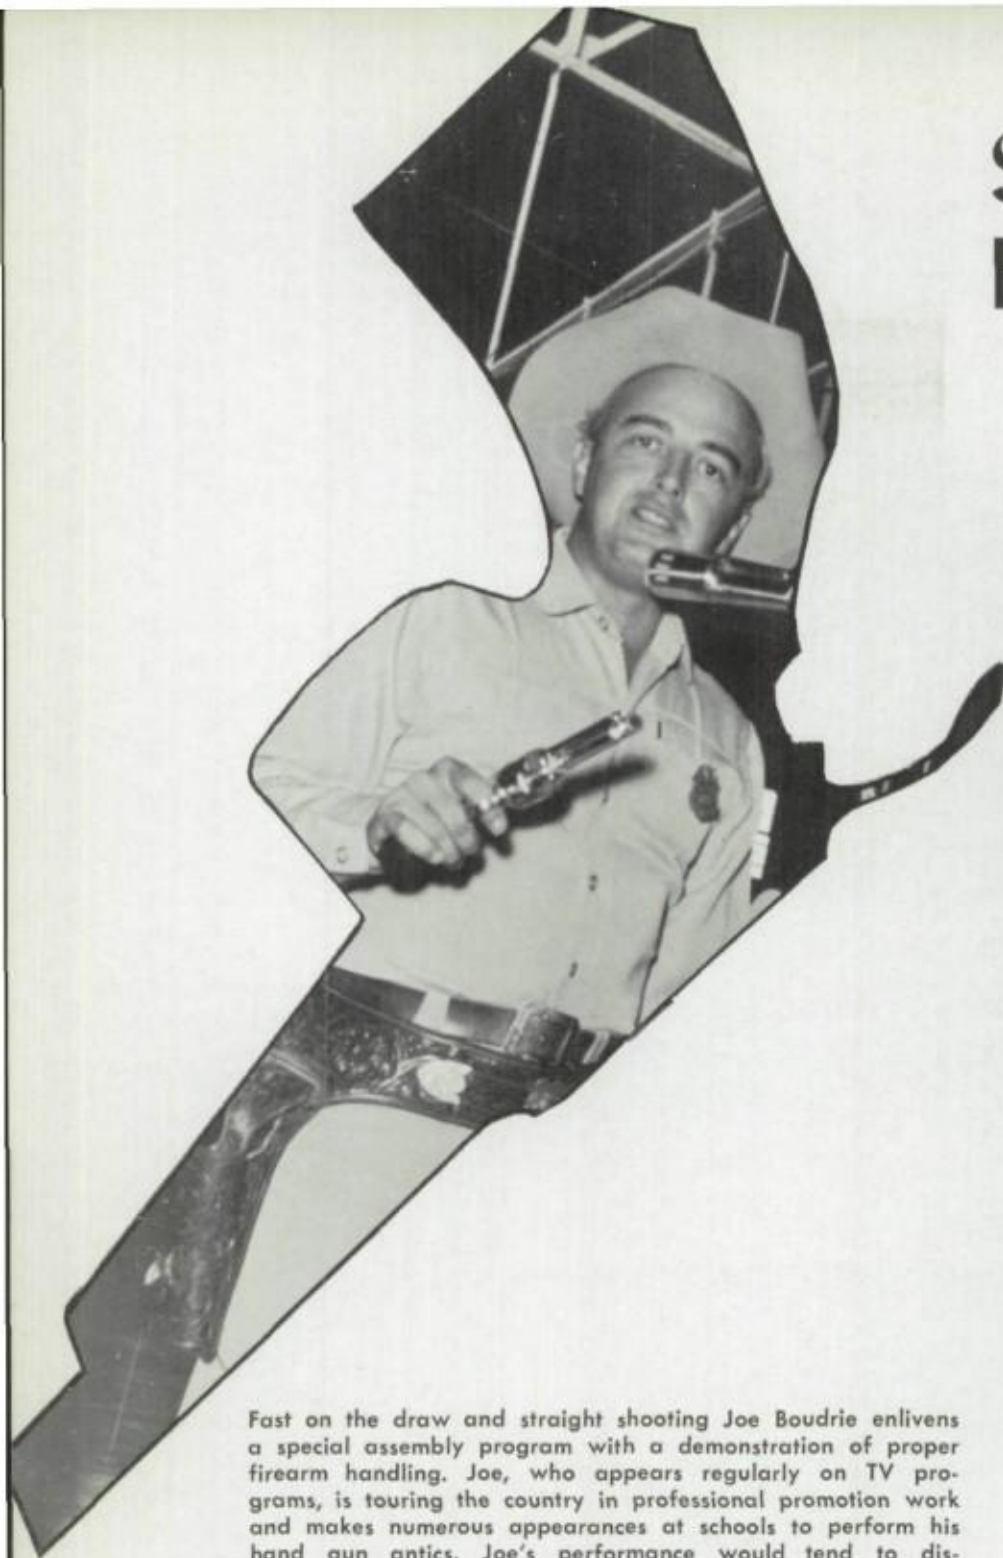

Only moments after the opening curtain of "The Curious Savage," the camera stops the action which sets the theme and mood of the play.

Facial expressions showing quiet compassion are poignantly illustrated in this unusual grouping of sanitarium inmates. Apt attention is centered on Bob Johnston the would-be violinist who tries in vain to produce the musical tones for which he so fervently grasps. With him are Nancy Houseknecht, Judy Freiberg, David Boettcher, Linda Jorgenson, Kathy Rogers, and Phillip Kouchoukos.

Shoot-em-ups, Farcical Basketball Games Regale Students

Fast on the draw and straight shooting Joe Boudrie enlivens a special assembly program with a demonstration of proper firearm handling. Joe, who appears regularly on TV programs, is touring the country in professional promotion work and makes numerous appearances at schools to perform his hand gun antics. Joe's performance would tend to discourage challenges to "shoot it out down by the old corral."

Representing armed services this year at the annual Veteran's Day Commemorating Ceremonies and program in the JT gym are S/Sgt. Robert Nelson, Army; T/Sgt. William Springs, Air Force; Sgt. George Richard, Marines; and BMC Ivan Verveckmoes, Navy.

Looking strangely unlike JT's undefeated football champions, this group of gridiron "stalwarts" none-the-less captivated their "following faithful," ala the Steelmen, at a rambunctious pep session during the football season as they mimicked their "real heroes" in a sham game against "Argo High." Since the game was fixed, guess who won. The feminine counterparts of the "Champs" are bottom row, left to right: Andrea Almasy, Sue Allen, Carolyn Carnegie, Jane Jorgenson, and Cindy Jolley. Top row: Miss Carolyn (Ray Klootwyk) Rhode, Rita Pollack, Marilyn Carnegie, Karen Kramer, Pat Johnston, Avace Gregory, Barb Booth, and an interloper, the real Ray Klootwyk.

Warming up to the occasion are Linda Bolling and Jim Henderson who help to crowd the dance floor at the GAA dance.

Strong advocates of dancing, but not together, are Judy Miller and Tom Egly, who prefer to perform their bodily girations independently of each other—like in no-contact sports. They seemed to enjoy each other's company, however, at the GAA dance.

As soon as they figure out what the band is playing, Sue Kuhar and Jim DeWitt will start dancing . . . and it had better be a waltz—that's the only step Jim knows. One of the highlights of the GAA dance was Jim's agile waltzing to the tune, "Let's Twist Again, Like We Did Last Summer."

Beauty Highlights Mid-Term Dance

Student Governing Body Contributes to Community

Sylvia Lundin is crowned "Miss J" of 1963 by Mrs. Charlene (Lundberg) Frojd, a renowned beauty in her own right. Alan Barney, chief editor of the year book, presents "Miss J" with a bouquet of roses. Mrs. Frojd, a Joliet native who has won numerous crowns as a beauty queen, reciprocates by crowning another local beauty.

The lady and the tiger proceed to the throne where they will effect important duties in behalf of the "Miss J" coronation. Mrs. Charlene (Lundberg) Frojd, escorted by Don McCarthy, year book Underclassmen Editor, will announce the name of the winner as provided her by Irv Kupcinet, newspaper columnist, and will crown her "Miss J" of 1963.

The stars of the "Miss J" coronation oblige with a full court presentation. Center stage is Sylvia Lundin, "Miss J" of 1963, with Mrs. Charlene (Lundberg) Frojd who did the crowning honors, to the left, and her escort, John Hathaway, to the right. The coronation court is composed of "Miss J" finalists and their escorts. They are, from the left, Mike Wolcott, Minnie

Sponsored by Student Council

Effort Which Aids Scholarship Fund

A segment of the crowd which attended the mid-term dance sponsored by the Student Council moves easily to the music of Bill Pappas. Besides the cause of an evening of dancing delight, also served was the "Dollars for Scholars" community project.

Getting partially obliterated is the price Don Leonard has to pay for getting to kiss Sylvia Lundin. This osculation occurred shortly after Sylvia was crowned "Miss J" of 1963 in a regal ceremony at the "Scholarship Swing." As president of the Senior Class, Don was on hand to present "Miss J" with a present from her classmates.

Providing his usual danceable music for the "Scholarship Swing" and "Miss J" coronation was Bill Pappas and his orchestra.

Capturing the festive mood of the evening while posing for a picture on a decorative swing fashioned by the sophomore chorus are Lois Litherland and her escort Bob Kleck.

An annual semi-formal dance, "Femmes Fancy," is sponsored by the Sophomore Chorus. Usually held in the spring the dance is anticipated by many. The chorus spends much time on promotion of ticket sales and decorations. Roy Gordon and his orchestra played dance music under the theme, "Always in April." Nearly all the girls in Sophomore Chorus pursued one type of job or another to make the dance a success. The responsibility of promoting the 1962 version of "Femmes Fancy," which was held April 6 was assumed by last year's officers who were: Susan Richards, President; Linda Stephen, Vice-President; Judy Kurbis, Treasurer; Janet Ott, Publicity Chairman; June Fisher, Secretary; Carol Engiman and Joan Skikas, Librarians.

When Roy Gordon's Orchestra took a breather, Jim Barkas and Mary Ann Scott stepped out for refreshments. Jim seems to be saying "Geel that went in a hurry. I think I'll go get another big orange."

"Annie" Incites Rollicking Musical Romp

"I ain't never seen a gal shoot like that before....are ya trick'in, me," Annie? Winnifred Sorensen plays the role of Annie, with Russell Wunderlich as Frank Butler in "Annie Get Your Gun."

Singing leading roles in Operetta, Frank wonders if Annie's "sho it's love?" If it is, it's definitely at first sight, for this was only the first meeting between Frank and Annie.

Variety in costumes was of great significance in the production as people from many walks of pioneer life are portrayed by the above students. Top row, Gerald Gear, Floronne Griffin, Tom Hankinson, Tim Mann, Susan Hall, Larry Peet. Middle row, Lee Johnston, Winnie Sorensen, Russ Wunderlich, Fred Kirk, Karen Chizmark, Bill Genda. Last row, Jill McDonald, Kenny McDonald, Paul Owings, Diane Johnson, and Ina Powell.

Assuming poses that characterize their stage identifications are operetta leads who include, Tim Mann, Floronne Griffin, Gerald Gear, Susan Hall, and, Larry Peet. Being able to submerge their natural personality in favor of an assumed make believe role is the time mark of the actor.

Commemorating One Hundred Years of Valor

Revelry of the evening, in the form of impromptu singing, picks up a D'Amico's 214 as the Military Ball festivities continue after only a short break to allow the guests time to repace to this fashionable setting after leaving the JT gym. Topping off a pleasant evening in a cozy corner are Cindy Wallace, George Miller, Rita Wolf, Pleasant Park, Janet Hicks, Mike Senecal, Sue Hicks, and Bob Bristol.

Soft lights, rhymlal melodies, pleasant setting, appreciative partners, stunning formals, and debonair uniforms, — what more is required to stage the splendor-splashed Military Ball held on March 29.

"Sitting out the dance" for the rest of the evening at a table at D'Amicos are Don Leonard, Rita Wolf, Cindy Wallace and George Miller.

After-dance conversation between a boy and girl can take various directions, sometimes to the extent of punctuating points with determined gesturing, and when George Miller elucidates, Cindy Wallace tends to listen dutifully.

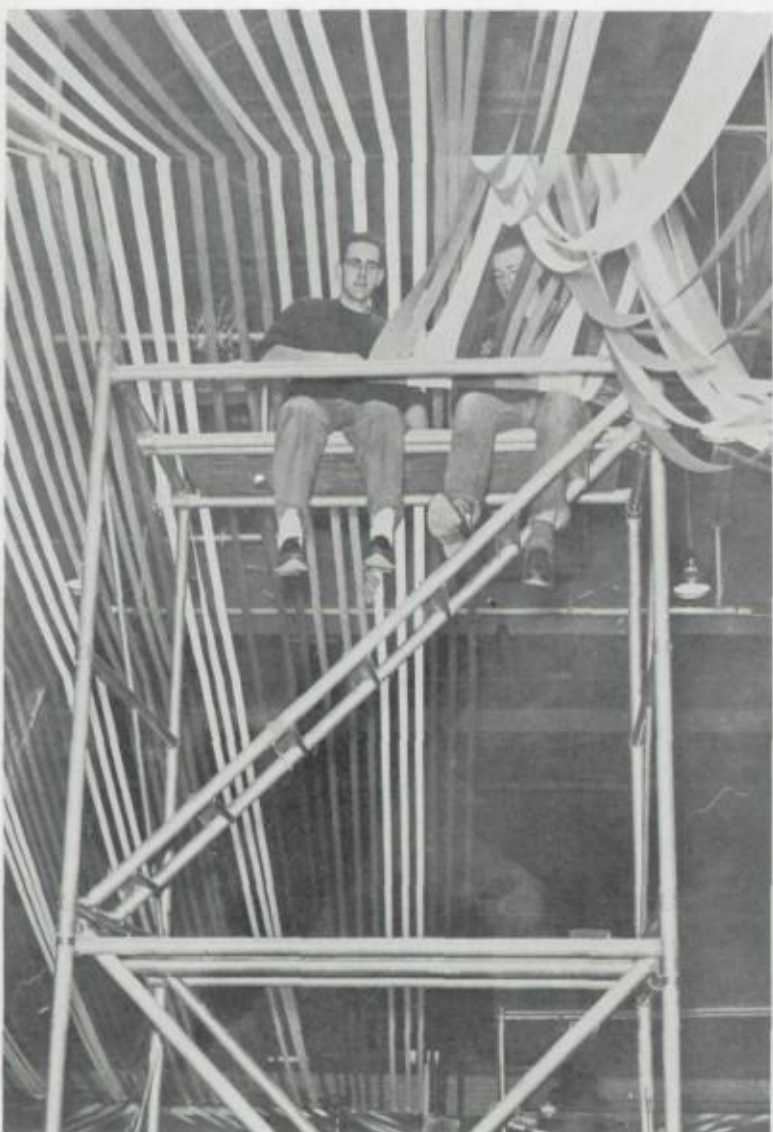

JT's Annual Social Event Extraordinaire

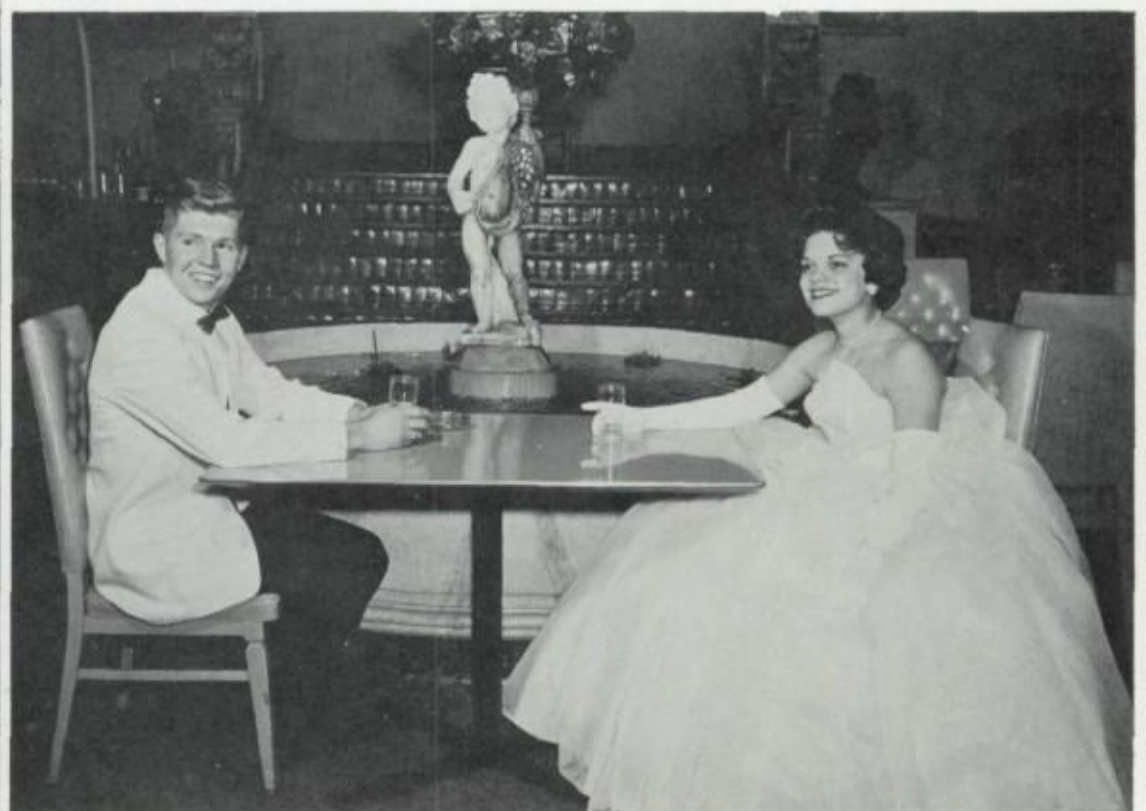

When proms cease to occur, schools will cease to exist. As traditionally American as apple pie, the "prom" has earned its place in Americana and must be reckoned with . . . to everybody's delight. JT's Junior-Senior Prom was held this year on May 24.

Informal socializing is an integral part of any dance. Meeting for casual chit-chat in a gateway at D'Amico's 214, after the prom are Ken Lawson, Gloria Vercellotti, Don Leonard, and Sue Hicks.

Upon arrival at D'Amicos 214 (at right) Cindy Wallace, Don Leonard, Rita Wolf, Ken Lawson, and Gloria Vercellotti, relax momentarily in light small talk.

Decorations for the Prom begin to materialize as workers Ray Ladd and Mark Muller drape multi-colored streamers to form the ceiling decor.

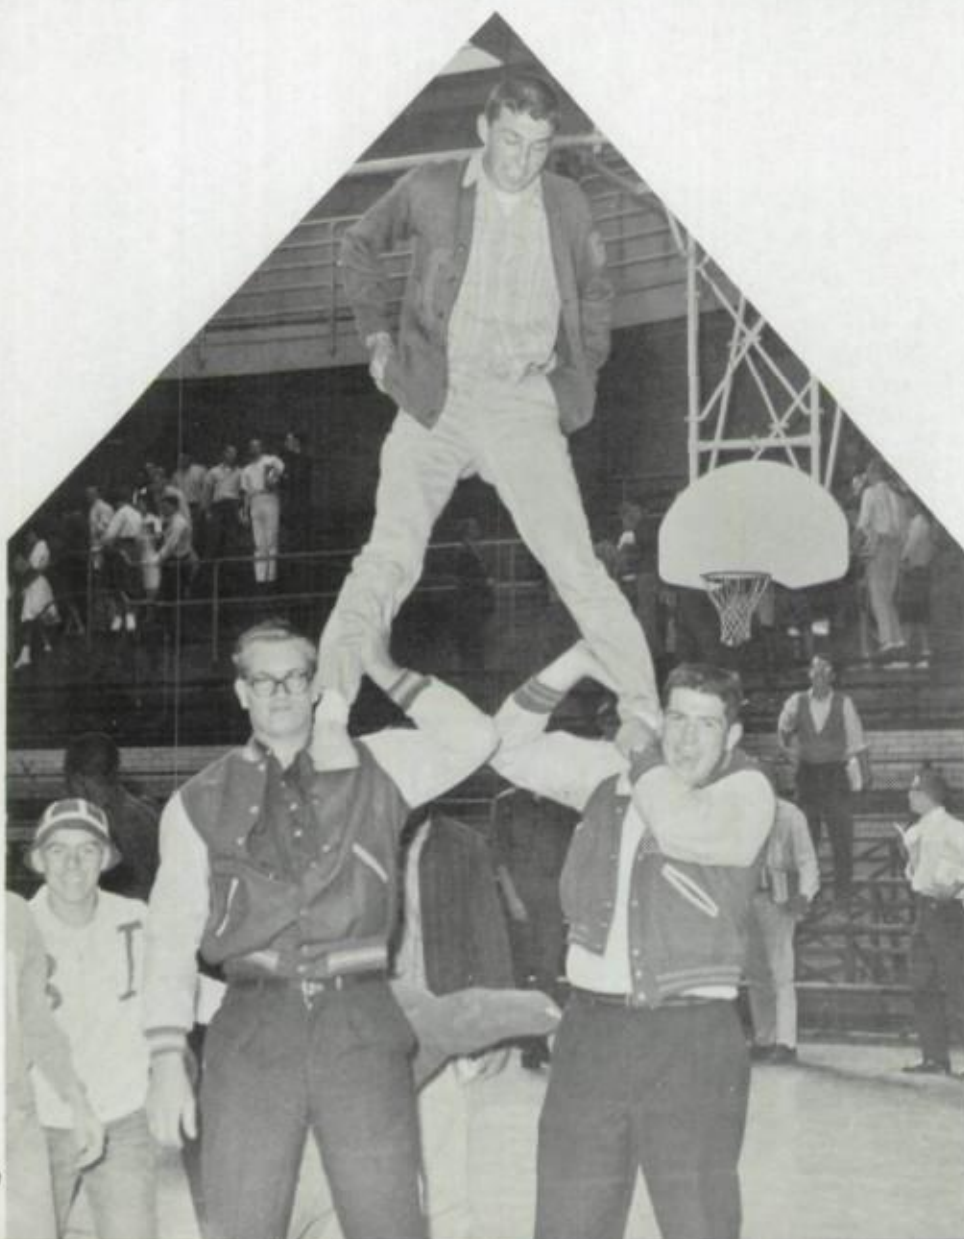

After the Ball, Gloria Vercellotti and Ken Lawson join the crowd at D'Amico's 214 to enjoy the pleasant environment.

TWIRP SEASON

Turnabout is fair play as The Woman Is Requested to Pay in many ways during TWIRP season. This includes carrying the fellows' books to and from classes and other subservient chores. But don't waste your pity on the "poor exploited" girls—they have ways of keeping way out ahead the rest of the year. In a typical Twirp Season situation here are Scott Bertrand, Nanci Strappazon, Carol Hrevnak, and Rick Duncan.

Twirp Season each year is climaxed by a dance sponsored by the Girls' Athletic Association. This seems a fitting finale to a span of days (and nights) in which the girls "eagerly" foot the bills and extend the normal courtesies, privileges usually reserved for boys. However, in a magnanimous gesture, the GAA takes credit for instigating a "season" in which the boy gets a few breaks and The Woman Is Required to Pay. What makes the dance a fitting climax is that the girls ask the boys for dates to the dance, call for them, extend all the amenities, pay all the expenses for the date, and see that the boys get home safely afterwards. The theme of this year's dance was "Cannibals' Rumble."

Enthusiasm runs rampant immediately after the pep program in the gymnasium prior to the Catholic High football game. Finding it difficult to control their fanaticism after the student body had been whipped to a frenzy with one of the most spirited productions in the school's history, these boys, John Williams, Don Leonard, and Jim Walser, just had to give vent to their feelings with a few gymnastics — all done in playful frivolity. Incidentally, the enthusiasm paid off — JT beat Catholic.

S P O R T S

Willie Boyce typifies JT versatility in athletic competition as he squelches a Thornridge scoring attempt. Although well-known for his offensive capabilities, Willie also demonstrates proficiency in defensive maneuvers. So it is with every JT team — the offense and defense complement each other because they are both interwoven for the excellence of the whole.

The awesome power of the Joliet football team carried it to its second South Suburban League Championship in as many years and the second perfect season in the history of the school.

According to the Chicago press, the Suburban Press Association, and the Champaign-Urbana News-Gazette poll, the mighty Steelmen were rated first in the state, while the A. P. poll rated Joliet a close second. But no matter what the polls say, in the hearts of its fans, the 1962 Blue and Gold will live forever as one of the mightiest teams ever produced by an Illinois prep school.

The final gun of the final game also marked the end of a phenomenally successful season for an "all-state" backfield consisting of Bill Wehrspann, Dave Kienlen, Jim Henderson, and Charlie Winters.

Truly, Ray Klotwyk's championship eleven has done justice to an outstanding coach, a man who brought winning football to Joliet Township High School.

The man who made it possible—head-coach Ray Klotwyk.

"Bronco" Bill Wehrspann is brought to a sudden stop by a Thornridge tackler.

JT "Stomps the Hill"

The Steelmen opened the 1962 campaign with a hard-fought 19-0 win over Joliet Catholic. Halfbacks Bill Wehrspann with two TDs and Dave Kienlen with one marker spurred the Blue and Gold to victory before a crowd estimated at 12,000.

Joliet Smashes Aurora

Showing its championship form, JT walked away with its second victory in as many starts with a 41-6 romp over West Aurora. Bill Wehrspann led the Steelers with a 12.9 yard-per-carry average and 3 TDs. Winters, Marconi, and Henderson each contributed one marker with Ferguson adding a safety.

JT Edges Eisenhower, 12-0

J. T. slipped by a scrappy Eisenhower eleven on TDs by Dave Kienlen and Charlie Winters. Markers were in the second and fourth quarters for a score of 12-0. Bill Wehrspann was the leading rusher against this Blue Island team with a 5 yard-per-carry average.

Charlie Winters evades a gang of Kankakee tacklers.

Joliet 32-Harvey 0

Again led by Bill Wehrspann with a phenomenal 16.6 yard-per-carry and 3 TDs, the Steelmen blanked Thornton of Harvey. Other markers were tallied by Gale Bucciarelli and Dave Kienlen who also chipped in 2 conversions.

Joliet Whips Bloom

J. T. again rolled to victory with the help of Bill Wehrspann, Dave Kienlen, Charlie Winters, and Nick Cookas. A delighted homecoming crowd saw the Steelers amass 45 points to Bloom's 12. Top scoring honors in this game went to Kienlen with 3 markers and Wehrspann with 1 TD.

Joliet 31—Kankakee 6

Kankakee's wet homecoming was spoiled by the brilliant scoring efforts of Bill Wehrspann with four TDs and Charlie Winters who contributed one marker. In the second half, the Steelmen rolled 151 yards on the ground to the Kay's 29.

Joliet 48—Lockport 14

In administering this shellacking to Lockport, the Steelers rushed to an extraordinary 450 yards on the ground. The bulk of the work was done by Charlie Winters, with four TDs, and Bill Wehrspann, Dave Kienlen, and Jim Henderson, each with one.

Joliet Halts Thornridge

The Steelmen added 2 TDs to a meager 7-6 lead going into the fourth quarter to clinch a 21-6 victory against a tough Thornridge squad. Scoring for Joliet was done by Jim Henderson, Charlie Winters, and center Jim Walser.

Joliet 31—Argo 0

Joliet blasted a hapless Argo squad with the rushing of Bill Wehrspann and Charlie Winters and the passing of Jim Henderson and Jim Randolph in the season's final game. Wehrspann made 2 TDs with Winters, Henderson, and Kienlen each contributing one marker.

Cross Country at J.T. lives in the shadow of the giant — football. But this rugged sport requires from its participants top physical conditioning and the will to win.

J.T.'s varsity squad placed second in the eight member conference. At the Rich invitational meet, they finished ahead of nine teams, taking second place in a field of eleven. At the district meet, out of 22 teams, the J.T. runners placed fourth — an outstanding showing. The Frosh-Soph squad coached, along with the varsity, by Don Kienlen, placed fourth in the conference.

Steelmen Capture Holiday Tourney Title

Joliet Wins First Game

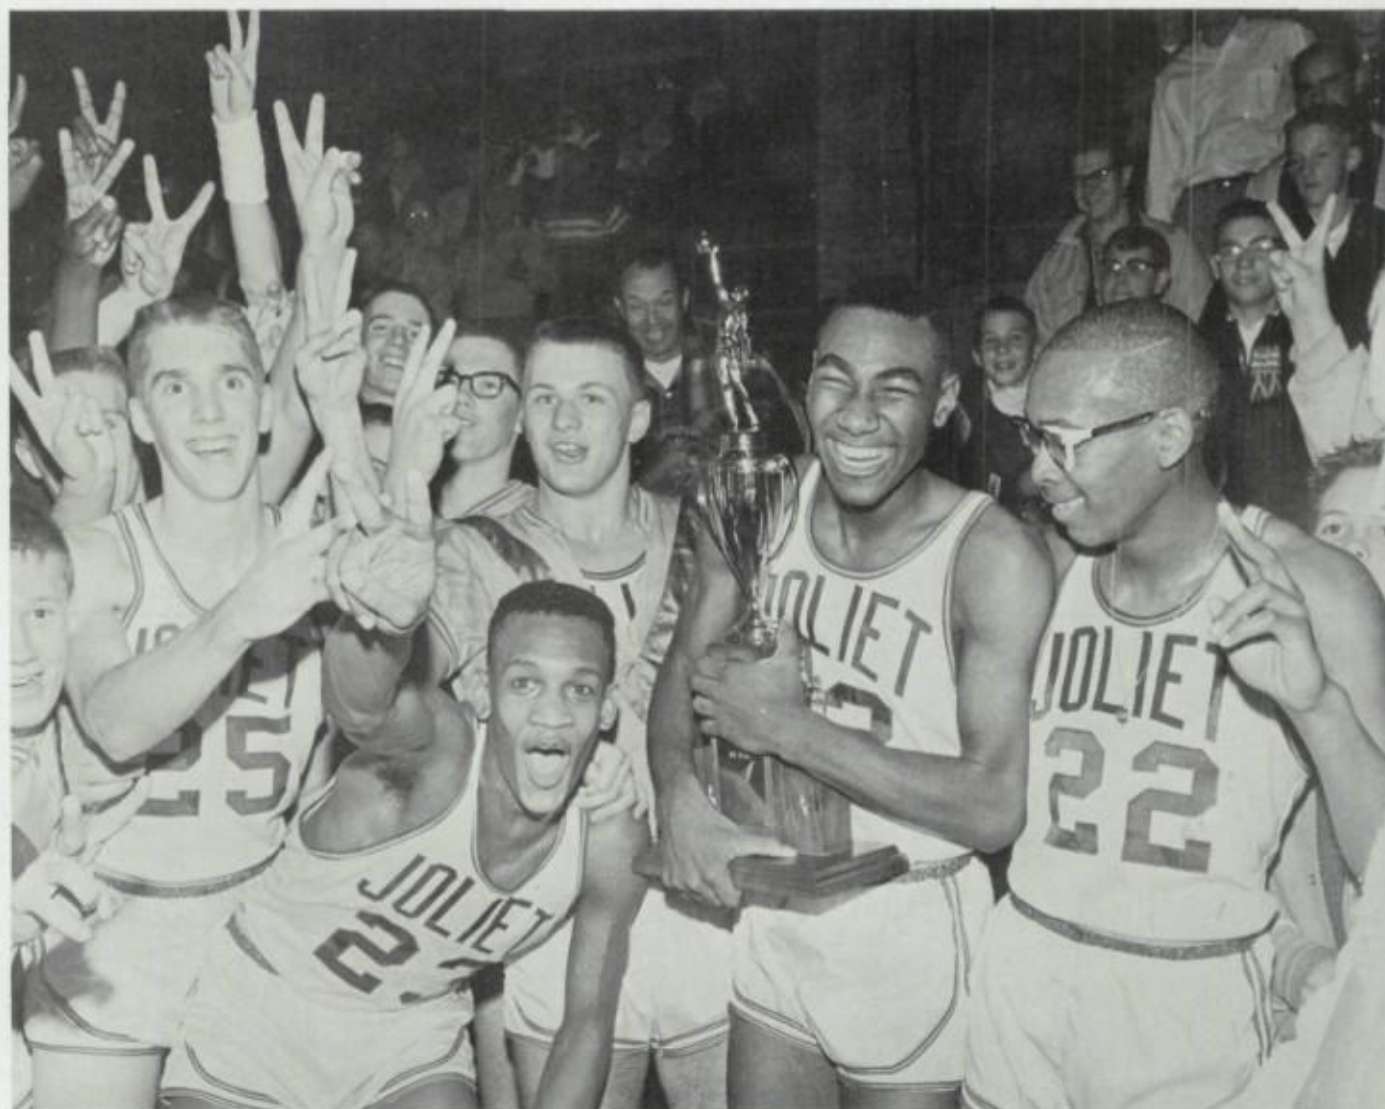

Joliet rang up its first win in the Holiday Tournament which it hosts. The Steelmen smashed Carl Sandburg — their victims in the Morris Tournament of the previous week — by a lopsided score of 63-34.

Scoring honors went to forwards Rick Armstrong, with 14, and Elgin Thompson, who sank 10.

Steelmen Smash Warhawks

Joliet rolled over North Chicago for its second victory in the Holiday Tournament, 74-42.

The Steelmen put together a hot, 25 point fourth quarter to help in this victory. Four Steelers hit in the double figures. Bill Sudakis had 17, Rick Armstrong sank 15, Kenny Howard collected 13, and Bill Wehrspann netted 12.

Joliet's Steelmen have good cause for whooping it up, having just won the Holiday Tournament. This was the first time a J.T. squad has carried away the championship in the yearly classic held in the J.T. gym.

Willowbrook Conquered by J.T.

The seemingly invincible Joliet cagers outdid themselves in the championship game of the Joliet Holiday Tournament, upsetting favored Willowbrook, 84-70.

There are two separate stories to tell. One is the scoring. Kenny Howard led in that department with a hot 33 points. Willy Boyce contributed 20, while Bill Sudakis and Rick Armstrong each netted 10.

The Warriors led through most of the first half, with the Steel-men tying it up 40-40 at intermission.

The second half was all J.T. with a 59-53 lead at the end of the third quarter, and a total of 25 points in the final quarter.

The second story is that of defense. Outstanding in this department was Bill Wehrspann. He held Warrior star Bill Borne to eleven points and rebounded spectacularly. Also helping to sweep the boards for the Steelmen were Rick Armstrong and Willy Boyce.

Steelman Bill Wehrspann out-reaches Jeff Crowe of Carl Sandburg for the rebound.

Steelmen 'Coast' to Second Morris Championship.

The Joliet Township Steelmen opened their quest of a second consecutive Morris Holiday Tournament championship with a victory over a stubborn Morris squad. After a bad start, the Redskins jumped to within two points of J.T. at the end of the third stanza, 46-44. Early in the fourth quarter, Morris tied the score at 48-all, and seconds later, went ahead 50-49. The Steelmen then gathered their scoring punch and pulled to a 69-58 final score.

In the second round against Ottawa, the Steelmen coasted to an easy, 73-54 victory. In this one, the Pirates never had a chance as the red-hot Steelmen ripped the nets for 31 field goals and controlled rebounds at both ends of the floor.

The championship game saw the netters from Joliet shock Carl Sandburg, 71-47. In this rout, the Orland Park school was so demoralized that they lost to J.T. the following week by a score of 63-34.

In the first round of the Joliet Regional Tournament, the Steelmen walked off with a 68-50 win over Lincoln Way. The Joliet squad was eliminated from the tourney in the semi-finals by Bloom, 67-56.

Joliet Township's basketball team started off the year in typical Steelman fashion, winning nine of the first eleven games. This year's squad was under the direction of a new mentor, Ed Woods. Coach Woods came to J.T. from North Chicago, where he coached basketball last year. Coach Woods's first year at J.T., although perhaps not as successful as he had hoped, was not without high points. The brightest spot all season was the Steeler's championship game against Willowbrook in the Joliet Holiday Tournament. In this game, the Steelmen upset the favored, state-ranked, Warriors in a spectacular display of offensive and defensive ability. Kenny Howard led the way with 33 points, while Bill Wehrspann spearheaded the defensive attack against Warrior star Bill Borneman.

This was only one taste of the excitement that the fans experience during basketball time at J.T.

Consistent winner Jesse Edwards drives to victory in the 1962 Will County Track Meet, while setting his sights toward an even better performance for the 1963 season.

Art Hammon, Rich Walling, and Tom Connely, 1962 squad members, exhibit Olympic style in the hurdles during one of last year's practices. Of them, Art returned to the 1963 team.

Coach Roger Swank aids Bob Mahalik, 1962 captain, in developing professional form — another asset to JT supremacy on the cinder paths.

Pole-vaulter Russ Thontlin returned to the 1963 squad as a junior. His winning attitude guarantees JT leadership for the 1964 season.

To Work and Play as a Team

Is the Golden Rule

for Every Board and Cabinet Member

To each of these eighteen board and cabinet members, GAA has a special meaning; the aim of some is companionship; participation in physical education "fills the bill" for others. Learning to work and play with others means so much to many, while gaining valuable experience for future careers in P.E. instruction, is the primary interest to some.

GAA Endorses Leadership and Character Training

Teaching P.E. is a primary interest of Joyce Heinlen. Joining in the student leading program will benefit her in so many ways when she is in the process of earning a degree in teaching.

These five proud, good looking, young ladies had the honor of setting the best records in a physical education program that the sophomore gym classes took part in. (Left to right) Charlette Tezak, Joan Stefanich, Darlene Koenig, Louise Wilson, and (seated) Debbie Hathaway.

Lois Litherland, participates in the student leader program that the girls' gym sponsors for senior girls who are planning to teach physical education for a career.

Climbing the ladder of success in GAA are these five seniors who have attained the honor of being awarded the fourth year award: (top left) Joyce Heinlen, (top right) Lois Litherland, Emily Williams, Barb Craig, and (bottom) Shirley Leuthner.

Volleyball's Pleasin' During Autumn Season

No, it doesn't take two girls to serve a ball, but it takes the efforts of Carol Dolosin and Lillian Perhutin to keep the balls flying during volleyball season.

Senior Volleyball Sportheads

With finger tip control Miss Rohde gets into the spotlight during volleyball.

"I knew we would agree on these scores, even if we did have to use a coin!" Mary Jo Verchimak comments to Sonja Perhutin.

Tennis, Anyone? or, Whichaway for Speedway?

Autumn Activities

No sport would be complete without the guidance of the sportheads. Carolyn Heidel and Barb Harris took on the responsibility of the speedway action.

Planning and officiating a tennis tournament was the main function of the tennis sportheads Cheri Douglas and Karen MacAlister.

The two L's, Libby Hall and Lois Litherand congratulate each other on winning the doubles tennis tournament.

Roll-A-Bowl-A-Ball-A-Many-A-Pitch

Bowled over by her success in bowling Avace Gregory decided to get a birds eye view of what happens when she throws her ball. Avace bowled a 181 game, the highest rolled by any GAA girl this year.

Shirley Leuthner and Susan Blount, bowling sportheads, are checking to make sure all the equipment is in good order before they let the girls bowl a 300 game.

Bunting her way to the top is Martha Katzin, a sportshead for baseball

Not to let her older sister out do her, Carole Leuthner gets into the act keeping score with her fellow bowling sportshead, Carol Gustafson.

Bevy of Bewildered Belles Battle Bouncing Basketball

Bewildered, puzzled, confused, perplexed, dazed, and staggered expresses the emotions of these basketball players in the midst of a romping game of "whose-got-the-ball."

Winter Frolic

This is one of over a hundred girls that practiced for the program that the four honorary clubs of GAA presented this year for the parents.

Stopping for a break are two of the basketball sportsheads, Pam Liberty and Jean Frank.

First Call in Fall for Rumbling Tumbling but Ballet Is Gay and Here To Stay

Equipment Would "Appear To Rate Us" Physically

Awaiting the arrival of forty or fifty eager beaver GAA girls are three of the apparatus sportsheads Nancy Blatti, Pat Liberty, and Carol Larson.

"Easy does it," says Terrie Holland as she does the splits on the balance beam.

Ride'em cowgirl. Sandy Palmer goes "up and over" the horse.

It's not a frog Jody Basinger is jumping over, it's a buck in the girls' gym.

Spring Spree

Decked out in their "Sunday whites" these apparatus sportsheads are prepared for the third season of activity. They are Linda Pratto, Lynda Davis, and Candy Powell.

Everybody Gets in the ACT in GAA ACTivities

"HMMMM, something taste good," says Miss Revell. Is it the hotdogs or her thumb? Joyce Heilen (left) is the official cook for the Gym Boree and Miss Brodie (right) and company are playing the role of the official tasters.

At the Mother-Daughter, Tea awards are presented, an initiation takes place, and, most important, new officers are announced and installed. Karen Skikas (right), former president, is installing the new president, Lois Litherland.

Dads, Dads, and More Dads

When someone yells "hey dad" in the girls' gym they had better be careful. Dad's Night is one of the most popular events held each year. Dads join in volleyball, relays, table tennis, and various other activities. Pictured here is one of the winning dad's team.

We, the editors of the J of '63, recognize that, in itself, this yearbook is inadequate, indeed, as an expression of the fondness for Joliet Township High School, its activities, and, especially its people, that we have developed while fulfilling our purpose: to preserve for posterity the events and activities of the 1962-63 school year. What can serve as adequate expression of our esteem is the successful recall of individual memories in future years . . . memories of that invaluable experience gained in the formation of character during this "academic" year. Thus, then, will our recording of temporal events establish a realization of the infinite qualities that comprise the soul.
